GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Wall Street's main indexes dipped in a choppy session on Tuesday as a drop in General Electric shares countered positive retailer earnings and investors eyed a key resistance level for the benchmark S&P 500 after the market's strong run. Concerns over U.S.-China trade relations also hovered, as U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said President Donald Trump would reject a trade deal that was not perfect, but the United States would still keep working on an agreement. Optimism over the trade talks and over the Federal Reserve being less aggressive in raising interest rates has helped boost the S&P 500 by 11 percent this year. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 13.02 points, or 0.05 percent, to 25,806.63, the S&P 500 lost 3.16 points, or 0.11 percent, to 2,789.65 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 1.21 points, or 0.02 percent, to 7,576.36. Investors are watching to see if the S&P 500 can breach 2,800, a level which the index has traded near for several sessions. Communication services led gains among the 11 S&P 500 sectors, while industrials fell the most. The consumer discretionary sector rose 0.2 percent, led by a 7.3 percent gain in Kohl's and 4.6 percent gain for Target following those retailers' respective earnings reports. Both forecast 2019 profit above Wall Street estimates.
Nikkei	Japan's Nikkei dipped on Tuesday, tracking losses on Wall Street and after Beijing trimmed its economic growth target, putting a cloud over companies with large exposures to China. Chip equipment makers also lost ground, with Tokyo Electron sliding 2.3 percent and Advantest Corp slipping 2.7 percent. The Nikkei share average ended 0.4 percent lower at 21,726.28, pulling away from Monday's near three-month high. Japan's benchmark index, which has risen 8.4 percent this year, hit its highest intraday level since Dec. 13 on Monday. The broader Topix dropped 0.5 percent to 1,619.23, with all but three of its 33 subsectors trading in negative territory. China on Tuesday lowered its economic growth target for this year to 6.0 to 6.5 percent, as expected, from around 6.5 percent last year amid growing challenges from a trade war with the United States. Beijing offered more stimulus, including cuts in taxes and social security fees, increases in infrastructure investment and lending to small firms. Hopes for the United States and China, the world's two largest economies, working out a trade truce have been a significant factor helping lift demand for riskier assets such as shares since late last year.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI stock index fell for the third straight session on Tuesday as China's cut in growth target and weaker-than-expected U.S. construction data chilled investor sentiment amid uncertainty over the Sino-U.S. trade deal. The Korean won ended flat while bond yields edged up. Chinese Commerce Minister Zhong Shan said on Tuesday trade talks with the United States have been difficult but that working teams from both countries are continuing with their negotiations. While China has lowered its 2019 economic growth target at 6.0-6.5 percent, from around 6.5 percent last year, it offered more stimulus, including cuts in taxes and social security fees, increases in infrastructure investment and lending to small firms. U.S. construction spending unexpectedly fell in December as investment in both private and public projects dropped, leading economists to expect that the government will trim its economic growth estimate for the fourth quarter. South Korea's February headline inflation rate grew a mere 0.5 percent in annual terms, marking the lowest growth since August 2016. The benchmark KOSPI index ended down 11.43 points or 0.52 percent at 2,179.23, extending its loss to a third session. Shares of companies making masks and air purifiers rallied as fine dust blankets South Korea, while the government enforced emergency measures. Mask manufacturer Welcron Co Ltd closed up nearly 5 percent. The won was quoted at 1,125.5 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.05 percent lower than its previous close at 1,124.9. In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,125.1 per U.S. dollar, nearly unchanged from the previous day, while in one-year non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,124.0 per dollar.

Hang Seng

● The Hong Kong stock market ended unchanged on Tuesday, after the Chinese government vowed to cut taxes and encourage lending but also trimmed its economic growth target.

At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was flat at 28,961.60 points, while the Hang Seng China Enterprises index rose less than 0.1 percent.

China will cut nearly 2 trillion yuan ($298.31 billion) in taxes and fees for companies, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said at the National People's Congress on Tuesday.

Beijing will also step up targeted cuts in the reserve requirement ratio for smaller and medium-sized banks with an aim to boost lending to small companies by large banks by more than 30 percent, said Li.

But market sentiments were dampened by Li's other announcement - that China will target an economic growth of 6.0 percent to 6.5 percent in 2019, less than the 6.6 percent gross domestic product growth reported last year.

Some consolidation for Hong Kong stocks was always likely after Monday's rally, which came after news that Beijing and Washington were closing in on a deal to remove tariffs, Essence Securities' analysts wrote in a note on Tuesday.

Sino-U.S. trade talks have been difficult but the two sides have achieved a breakthrough in some areas and will continue their negotiations, Chinese Commerce Minister Zhong Shan said on Tuesday.

The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares dipped 0.6 percent, the financial sector slid 0.3 percent and property stocks lost 0.3 percent.

● Shanghai stocks edged higher on Tuesday after the Chinese government vowed to cut taxes and increase public expenditure to prop up slowing economic growth.

At the midday break, the Shanghai Composite index was up 0.1 percent at 3,031 points, while the blue-chip CSI300 index was close to flat.

CSI300's financial sector sub-index was lower by 0.4 percent, the consumer staples sector was down almost 0.1 percent, while information technology stocks rose 0.7 percent.

Chinese H-shares listed in Hong Kong fell almost 0.1 percent, while the Hang Seng Index was pretty much flat at 28,950.77 points.

The smaller Shenzhen index was up 0.8 percent and the start-up board ChiNext Composite index was higher by 1.2 percent.

The Chinese government plans to cut nearly 2 trillion yuan ($298.31 billion) in taxes and fees for companies, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said at the National People's Congress on Tuesday, noting that fiscal policy will become "more forceful".

The special bond issuance quota for local governments, a key source for infrastructure investment, has been set at 2.15 trillion yuan, the finance ministry said in a report on Tuesday. The quota was set at 1.35 trillion yuan last year.

The policies emerged as China experienced its slowest growth in decades. The government is targeting economic growth of 6.0 to 6.5 percent in 2019, Li said, less than the 6.6 percent gross domestic product growth reported last year.
