GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• China's services sector expanded at the slowest pace in four months in February, pressured by fewer new orders at home and abroad, a private survey showed on Tuesday, underlining growing strains on the economy and a challenging outlook for businesses this year. The Caixin/Markit services purchasing managers' index (PMI) fell to 51.1, the lowest since October and down sharply from January's 53.6.</li> <li>• Australia's central bank stuck to its upbeat view of the economy after it held rates at record lows in a widely expected move on Tuesday, just a day before GDP data is likely to show domestic momentum almost stalled last quarter. The Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) ended a 30th straight meeting with rates at 1.50 percent and signalled a steady policy outlook as it awaits a pick up in economic growth and inflation.</li> <li>• The Bank of England said it will offer more euros to banks in Britain to avoid any cash crunch after Brexit and warned that other European Union countries are not fully ready for the possible no-deal hit to the financial system.</li> <li>• Euro zone business activity accelerated more than thought last month but remained lacklustre as a pickup in services growth only partially masked a downturn in the bloc's manufacturing industry, a survey showed on Tuesday.</li> <li>• Sales of new U.S. single-family homes rose to a seven-month high in December, but November's outsized jump was revised lower, pointing to continued weakness in the housing market.</li> <li>• Prime Minister Theresa May's top government lawyer was holding talks in Brussels on Tuesday in a last-ditch bid to secure changes to get her Brexit deal through parliament and smooth Britain's departure from the European Union.</li> </ul>
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A gauge of world stock markets recovered from early declines but was slightly lower on Tuesday as China cut its growth targets to a 30-year low but added more stimulus, while strong U.S. economic data sent the dollar to a two-week high.</li> <li>• Stocks on Wall Street traded in a like fashion, with the benchmark S&amp;P 500 a touch below the unchanged mark as investors looked for developments on trade between the United States and China. Positive retail earnings from Target Corp and data on the U.S. services and housing sectors helped provide support to the upside.</li> </ul>
FOREX	The dollar rose to a two-week peak against a basket of currencies on Tuesday as unexpectedly strong data on U.S. services industries and new home sales allayed some worries about the state of the world's largest economy. The euro weakened to two-week lows versus the greenback on expectations that the European Central Bank meeting on Thursday would hint at a delay in raising rates until next year and soon relaunch long-term bank loans to battle an economic slowdown. Among other G10 currencies, the Canadian dollar fell to its lowest in over five weeks due to a combination of trade troubles, resignations from Prime Minister Justin Trudeau's cabinet and bets the Bank of Canada could be on the cusp of changing its policy direction. Earlier on Tuesday, the U.S. Commerce Department said new single-family home sales increased to a seven-month high in December, while the Institute for Supply Management said its gauge on services sector activity rose more than expected last month. An index that tracks the dollar against the euro, yen, sterling and three other major currencies increased 0.17 percent to 96.895 in late U.S. trading. It earlier touched a two-week high of 97.008. The euro fell to a two-week trough of $1.12895. It was last down 0.32 percent to $1.1304. Investors are seeking out higher-yielding currencies as price volatility in the world's most-traded currencies has plummeted following a dovish shift by major central banks. The Bank of Canada is expected to leave domestic borrowing costs unchanged at its policy meeting on Wednesday. Some traders expect it might lower rates later this year. The Canadian currency was 0.32 percent weaker at C$1.3346. It hit C$1.336 earlier on Tuesday, which was its lowest against the greenback since Jan. 25.

GOLD	Gold prices slipped on Tuesday to their lowest in more than five weeks as the dollar rose on stronger than expected economic data and rising U.S. Treasury yields. Global equities held near five-month highs. Spot gold was down 0.1 percent at $1,285.57 per ounce at 2:07 p.m. EST (1907 GMT). U.S. gold futures settled down 0.2 percent to $1,284.7 per ounce. On Friday, gold dropped below $1,300 an ounce, hurt by a robust dollar. Gold has shed over 2 percent this month as trade talks between Beijing and Washington accelerated, with reports saying a deal could be sealed at a summit around March 27. Global stock markets were at five-month highs following China's assurance of stimulus measures after lowering its growth targets. The U.S. dollar stood close to a two-week peak against peers, supported by strong data on new home sales and services industries, which eased worries about a deceleration in U.S. economic growth. Gold prices dropped to $1,280.70 soon after the data, its lowest level since Jan. 25. Meanwhile, investment bank Goldman Sachs raised its 12 month gold price forecast to $1,450 per troy ounce from $1,425. Markets will now look ahead to the European Central Bank's monetary policy meeting on Thursday and U.S. non-farm payrolls data on Friday. Silver was up 0.3 percent at $15.12 per ounce. Earlier in the session it fell as low as $15.01, its lowest since Dec. 27. Spot palladium declined 1.3 percent to $1,513.88 per ounce, while platinum was up 0.2 percent at $836.35.
OIL	Oil prices held near flat on Tuesday as the market wavered on expectations that the United States and China would reach a trade agreement as early as this month while awaiting U.S. government crude inventory data. Investors also weighed OPEC-led efforts to tighten crude supply against the restart of Libya's biggest oilfield and the prospect of weaker demand from China. Brent, the international benchmark, settled at $65.86 a barrel, up 19 cents. U.S. West Texas Intermediate crude settled at $56.56 a barrel, down 3 cents. U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said President Donald Trump would reject any trade deal that is not perfect, but added the White House would keep working on an agreement. Supply curbs by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and allies helped support crude. On Monday, Russia said it would speed up output cuts this month, and OPEC sources this week also said the group would likely extend its output cut pact that has driven oil prices about 20 percent higher this year. The restart of Libya's El Sharara oilfield could offset some of the cuts, however. The field, with a capacity of 315,000 barrels a day, had been closed since December. The market expects U.S. inventory reports will show rising crude stockpiles. Analysts polled by Reuters estimated, on average, that crude stocks rose 1.2 million barrels in the week to March 1. The first supply report is due at 4:30 p.m. EST (2130 GMT) from the American Petroleum Institute (API), an industry group, followed by the government's official figures on Wednesday. Concern about an economic slowdown in China weighed on prices. China's government said it is targeting economic growth of 6.0 to 6.5 percent in 2019, lower than the 6.6 percent growth reported last year and raising the prospect of slowing fuel demand.
