GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Australia's top central banker sounded sanguine about a sharp slowdown in the country's property market on Wednesday saying it was unlikely to derail momentum even as data showed the $1.3 trillion economy hit an airpocket last quarter. Domestic activity slowed sharply in the second half of last year, the figures released on Wednesday showed, with gross domestic product (GDP) rising 0.2 percent in the December quarter following a sub-par 0.3 percent in the previous three-month period.</li> <li>• The Bank of Canada held interest rates steady as expected on Wednesday amid a slowing economy and said there was "increased uncertainty" around the timing of future rate increases.</li> <li>• Talks with Britain on amending its divorce deal with the European Union have made no headway and no swift solution is in sight, EU officials said on Wednesday, a week before British lawmakers must vote on the plan to avoid a chaotic Brexit.</li> <li>• The U.S. goods trade deficit surged to a record high in 2018 as strong domestic demand fueled by lower taxes pulled in imports, despite the Trump administration's "America First" policies, including tariffs, aimed at shrinking the trade gap.</li> <li>• Slowing global growth and the 35-day partial federal government shutdown weighed on the U.S. economy in the first weeks of 2019, but it continued growing amid still tight labor markets, the Federal Reserve reported on Wednesday.</li> </ul>
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Wall Street's main indexes fell for a third session on Wednesday, with the S&amp;P 500 posting its biggest one-day decline in a month, as healthcare and energy shares slumped and investors sought reasons to buy after the market's strong rally to start the year.</li> <li>• With corporate earnings season ending, investors are looking for next catalysts to drive the market, including a potential trade agreement between the United States and China and economic data, including Friday's employment report.</li> </ul>
FOREX	The Canadian and Australian dollar sank to two-month lows on Wednesday as traders scaled back holdings on expectations policy-makers would leave interest rates alone in the foreseeable future or even lower them to counter their softening economies. The Bank of Canada said on Wednesday there was "increased uncertainty" about the timing of future rate hikes as it held interest rates steady as expected. Australia said its economy grew at a 0.2 percent pace in the fourth quarter of 2018, falling short of the 0.3 percent forecast by analysts polled by Reuters. The dour GDP figure came a day after the Reserve Bank of Australia's upbeat outlook failed to dispel bets it would have to lower rates eventually. The Canadian dollar fell to C$1.3457 after the release of the BOC's latest policy statement, its lowest against its U.S. counterpart since Jan. 4. At 3:20 p.m. EST (2020 GMT), it was 0.55 percent weaker at C$1.3424. The Aussie dollar was $0.7028, down 0.78 percent on the day after hitting $0.7021, a two-month low. The greenback held steady against most major currencies after the Federal Reserve released its latest Beige Book, which showed tariffs and a record 35-day partial government shutdown were drags on the U.S. economy in early 2019. While the Fed took a dovish turn of its own in late January, the dollar has been supported by the relative wide differentials between U.S. bond yields and the yields of most developed economies, analysts said. For example, benchmark 10-year Treasury yields were about 256 basis points higher than those on 10-year German Bunds. Speculators have remained bullish on the greenback in view of the continuing uncertainties over Brexit and trade negotiations between China and the United States. An index that tracks the dollar against a basket of currencies was little changed on the day at 96.878, just below a two-week high reached on Tuesday. The euro bounced back above $1.13 after hitting a two-week low at $1.12855 earlier

	Wednesday. It was a marginally lower on the day at 126.42 yen. Analysts expected little surprises from the European Central Bank meeting on Thursday amid speculation that it is getting ready to make new cheap loans to struggling banks through its Targeted Long-Term Refinancing Operations (TLTROs).
GOLD	Gold steadied on Wednesday just above a five-week low touched a day earlier as the dollar retreated slightly and stocks edged lower, with investors awaiting further signals on the health of the global economy. Spot gold was little changed at $1,286.01 per ounce as of 1:53 p.m. EST (1853 GMT), trading in a narrow $7 range. U.S. gold futures settled up 0.2 percent at $1,287.6 per ounce. U.S. stocks fell on Wednesday as investors stayed on the sidelines following a strong rally this year, while the U.S. dollar index held steady. Gold hit a low of $1,280.70 on Tuesday, its weakest level since Jan. 25, with prices down more than 4 percent since hitting a 10-month peak on Feb. 20. Weak data from the euro zone the last couple of weeks has fueled expectations that the European Central Bank at its Thursday meeting could downgrade the area's growth and inflation forecasts for 2019 and hold off raising interest rates. Meanwhile, the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development cut forecasts again for the global economy in 2019 and 2020, citing trade rows and Brexit uncertainty. Investors are awaiting U.S. monthly jobs data to be disclosed on Friday, which is considered a key indicator of the health of the world's largest economy. Among other precious metals, palladium rose 0.9 percent to $1,529.51 per ounce. Spot silver declined 0.3 percent to $15.07 per ounce, after hitting its lowest level since Dec. 27, at $15, earlier in the session. Platinum dipped 1.6 percent to $823.
OIL	Crude oil futures were mixed on Wednesday after U.S. government data showed an unexpectedly sharp build in crude inventories, though a third straight drop in gasoline stocks supported prices. Brent crude futures settled at $65.99 a barrel, up 13 cents, or 0.2 percent. U.S. crude oil futures ended down 34 cents, or 0.6 percent, at $56.22 a barrel. U.S. crude inventories rose 7.1 million barrels last week, far exceeding analysts' expectations for a build of 1.2 million barrels, the Energy Information Administration (EIA) said. Gasoline stocks, however, fell 4.2 million barrels, compared with analysts' expectations for a 2.1 million-barrel drop. U.S. gasoline futures gained about 1 percent. Crude futures also tracked a slump in U.S. equities, which sputtered without positive developments in trade talks between Washington and Beijing. U.S. President Donald Trump said trade talks were moving along well, but offered few details. The markets have been hit by surging U.S. crude production, which, according to the EIA, held at an all-time high of 12.1 million barrels per day last week. The rise in North American production undermines supply cuts led by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and its non-member allies, including Russia, that has helped crude prices rise about 20 percent this year. OPEC and its partners have pledged to curb output by 1.2 million bpd, and they are likely to push back their decision whether to extend the production agreement to June from April, sources said. Chevron Corp and Exxon Mobil Corp released rival Permian Basin projections on Tuesday pointing to increased shale oil production in the largest U.S. oil patch. The increases would cement the pair as the dominant players in the West Texas and New Mexico field, with one-third of Permian production potentially under their control within five years.
