GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Australia's central bank was looking to strike a balance between the damaging effects of crumbling home prices on consumer spending against a sturdy labour market when it left interest rates at a record low earlier this month. • The mood among German investors improved by much more than expected in March, a survey by the ZEW research institute showed on Tuesday, as a potential delay to Britain's departure from the European Union buoyed sentiment. • British employers ramped up their hiring at the fastest pace since 2015 in the three months to January as the labour market defied broader Brexit weakness in the overall economy. The number of people in work surged by 222,000, helping to push the unemployment rate down to its lowest since the start of 1975 at 3.9 percent, official data showed. • Prime Minister Theresa May will ask the European Union to delay Brexit by at least three months after her plans for another vote on her twice-defeated divorce deal were thrown into crisis by a surprise intervention by the speaker of parliament. • New orders for U.S.-made goods rose less than expected in January and shipments fell for a fourth straight month, offering more evidence of a slowdown in manufacturing activity • President Donald Trump said on Tuesday that U.S. trade talks with China were going well as two top American officials reportedly plan a visit to China next week for a fresh round of talks.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Financial stocks weighed on all three major U.S. stock indexes, which gave up early gains following a Bloomberg report that China is pushing back against American demands in trade talks. • A report from the U.S. Commerce Department showed a smaller-than-expected increase in factory orders, the latest in a string of underwhelming economic data that has supported the Fed's more accommodative stance. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 26.72 points, or 0.1 percent, to 25,887.38, the S&P 500 lost 0.37 points, or 0.01 percent, to 2,832.57 and the Nasdaq Composite added 9.47 points, or 0.12 percent, to 7,723.95.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar edged lower against a basket of major currencies on Tuesday as concerns over the strength of the U.S. economy and expectations that the Federal Reserve will prove accommodative at its meeting this week weighed on the greenback. The dollar index, which measures the greenback against six major currencies, fell 0.15 percent to 96.375, hovering close to a more than two-week low touched overnight. Traders are focused on the Federal Reserve, which kicked off its two-day policy meeting on Tuesday, for clues about the likely path of U.S. borrowing costs and whether the central bank will affirm its commitment to "patient" monetary policy, analysts said. Investors will particularly look to see whether policymakers have sufficiently lowered their interest rate forecasts to more closely align their "dot plot," a diagram showing individual policymakers' rate views for the next three years, analysts said. Earlier on Tuesday, data showed new orders for U.S.-made goods rose less than expected in January and shipments fell for a fourth straight month. That follows data on Friday that showed U.S. manufacturing output fell for a second straight month in February. The Australian dollar, which has advanced in recent days - helped by the U.S. dollar's weakness - was down 0.22 percent after minutes of the Reserve Bank of Australia's March policy meeting expressed concern about the housing market. Volatility in foreign exchange markets is at its lowest in five years and analysts say recent decisions by the Fed and other major central banks are contributing. Sterling was up 0.18 percent at $1.3278. It pared early gains on concerns that British Prime Minister Theresa May's request for postponing Brexit was running into complications with the European Union.

GOLD	Palladium surged past $1,600 for the first time on Tuesday, in a seven-session rally, on expectations that strained supplies of the autocatalyst metal could worsen, while platinum soared 3 percent. Gold and other precious metals gained off a weaker dollar as the Federal Reserve began two days of policy meetings, with market concerns about U.S. economic growth. Spot palladium rose 1 percent to $1,599.01 per ounce as of 2:37 p.m. EDT (1837 GMT), after hitting an all-time high of $1,606. Compounding a weak supply scenario for palladium, Russia's trade and industry ministry is considering banning exports of precious metals scrap and tailings from the world's largest producer of the white metal. Last week, Fiat Chrysler said about 965,000 vehicles would be recalled in the United States and Canada for not meeting emissions standards, and have their catalytic converters replaced. While both platinum and palladium are primarily consumed by automakers for catalytic converter manufacturing, platinum is used more in diesel vehicles. Spot Platinum jumped to $855.33 an ounce on Tuesday, its highest since March 4. Gold rose 0.3 percent to $1,306.76 per ounce, firming above the psychologically important $1,300 level as the dollar slipped. U.S. gold futures rose 0.4 percent to $1,306.5 per ounce. Markets anticipate the Fed will stay dovish during its Federal Open Market Committee meeting, which began at 1800 GMT, and expectations of an interest rate cut have increased after weaker-than-expected U.S. manufacturing data on Friday. Lower interest rates reduce the opportunity cost of holding non-yielding gold and weigh on the dollar. Spot silver declined 0.4 percent to $15.38 per ounce.
OIL	Oil prices were largely steady around four-month highs on Tuesday on expectations that OPEC would continue production cuts till the end of the year, and ahead of weekly U.S. data that was forecast to show a build in crude stocks. Brent crude oil futures settled 7 cents higher at $67.61 a barrel, the global benchmark's highest settlement since November 2018. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) futures touched its highest since November at $59.57 a barrel but finished at $59.03 a barrel, falling 6 cents. Oil prices have rallied more than 20 percent after the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and its allies began to curb supplies since the start of the year. After a short gathering in Azerbaijan, the producer group on Monday scrapped its planned meeting in April and will decide instead whether to extend output cuts in June, once the market has assessed the impact of U.S. sanctions on Iran and the crisis in Venezuela. Some analysts expressed concern that the cancellation was related to tension between Saudi Arabia, the de facto head of OPEC, and Russia, the largest producing non-member of the group that agreed to production cuts last year. Both benchmarks weakened after Bloomberg reported U.S. officials were concerned Beijing was pushing back against Washington's demands during trade talks, lowering hopes for a resolution to the tariff war that has threatened global oil demand. Weekly figures on U.S. oil data from the American Petroleum Institute (API), an industry group, will be released at 4:30 p.m. EDT (2030 GMT), followed by the official Energy Information Administration (EIA) figures on Wednesday. U.S. crude oil inventories were forecast to have risen last week, while refined products were likely to have drawn down, a Reuters poll showed. Due to a tighter supply outlook for the coming months, the Brent forward curve has gone into backwardation since the start of the year, meaning prices for immediate delivery are more expensive than barrels for delivery in the future.
