GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • New Zealand's economy rebounded last quarter as households splurged on everything from eating out to vacations, but there were few signs of inflation, suggesting policy will remain accommodative for some while yet. Statistics New Zealand said on Thursday that New Zealand's gross domestic product expanded 0.6 percent quarter-on-quarter in the three months to December, as analysts had expected, and double the 0.3 percent pace of the third quarter. • Australia's jobless rate fell to a near eight-year low in February as a bumper run in employment extended, sending the local dollar sharply higher on expectations the country's central bank won't cut interest rates any time soon. A total 4,600 net new jobs were created in February with all of the increase led by part-time work, according to the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) report on Thursday. • Canada added 36,200 jobs in February, led by hiring in the professional and business services sector, according to a report from ADP released on Thursday. • The Bank of England kept interest rates steady on Thursday and said most businesses felt as ready as they could be for a no-deal Brexit that would likely hammer economic growth and jobs. • British retailers racked up surprisingly strong sales last month, reinforcing how spending by consumers is a bright spot for the economy ahead of Brexit. • European Union leaders will offer on Thursday to delay Brexit until May 22 at the latest -- but only if Prime Minister Theresa May can turn around massive parliamentary opposition and win lawmakers' backing next week for her withdrawal plan. Fail, and leaders expect to have to meet her again to decide whether to give her a much longer extension -- or pull the plug and let Britain lurch out of the Union without a legal safety net at midnight next Friday, 11 p.m. London time on March 29. • A U.S. trade delegation headed by Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin will visit China on March 28-29 for the next round of negotiations, China's commerce ministry said on Thursday. In return, Vice Premier Liu He will travel to the Washington in early April for more talks, according to ministry spokesman Gao Feng, as the world's two biggest economies try to hammer out a trade deal to end months of disputes. • The number of Americans filing applications for unemployment benefits fell more than expected last week, pointing to still strong labor market conditions, though the pace of job growth has slowed after last year's robust gains. Other data on Thursday showed a measure of factory activity in the mid-Atlantic region rebounding sharply this month after falling into negative territory in February for the first time in more than 2-1/2 years.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Wall Street led global stocks higher on Thursday on the back of upbeat economic data, while the dollar rallied despite the Federal Reserve's uber-dovish stance as Brexit worries weighed on the euro and sterling. • The British currency tumbled 0.73 percent against the U.S. dollar on a rising probability of a "no-deal" Brexit that would likely slow economic growth. • A day after the Fed flagged an economic slowdown, U.S. data showed jobless benefit applications fell more than expected while mid-Atlantic factory activity rebounded, triggering gains in technology stocks, and the Wall Street benchmark closed at its highest in over five months.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar rebounded against a basket of currencies on Thursday, recouping all its losses from the previous session as Brexit-related worries hurt sterling and the euro, helping to take the focus off the surprisingly dovish Federal Reserve. The dollar index, which measures the greenback against six major currencies, was up 0.75 percent to 96.476. The index fell 0.6 percent on Wednesday, closing below its 200-day moving average for the first time in more than 10 months, after the Fed jolted markets by abandoning all plans to

	raise rates this year. On Thursday, the pound plunged on growing fears of a "no-deal" Brexit should British lawmakers hold firm in their rejection of British Prime Minister Theresa May's EU divorce deal. European Union leaders will offer on Thursday to delay Brexit until May 22 at the latest - but only if May can turn around massive parliamentary opposition and win lawmakers' backing next week for her withdrawal plan. The euro was 0.48 percent lower against the greenback. Sterling was down nearly 1 percent and came within a whisker of slipping below $1.30. On Thursday, the Bank of England kept interest rates steady. Norway's central bank raised its main interest rate on Thursday, as expected, and said its next hike may come earlier than previously planned, boosting the crown currency against the euro and the dollar. The Swiss franc was down slightly against the greenback after Swiss National Bank Chairman Thomas Jordan said increasing global economic risks meant the central bank would stick to its ultra-loose monetary policy for the foreseeable future.
GOLD	Gold prices dipped on Thursday in volatile trade after hitting three-week highs earlier in the session as a set of better than expected U.S data lifted the dollar, while palladium notched a record peak on supply concerns. Spot gold slipped 0.4 percent to $1,307.23 per ounce as of 2 p.m. EDT (1800 GMT), having earlier hit $1,320.22, its highest level since Feb. 28. The metal was set to snap five consecutive sessions of gains. However, U.S. gold futures settled 0.4 percent higher at $1,307.3 an ounce. The number of Americans filing applications for unemployment benefits fell more than expected last week, and other data showed a measure of factory activity in the mid-Atlantic region rebounding sharply this month after heavy falls. Against a basket of currencies, the dollar index rose to 96.53, up 0.8 percent on the day, making dollar-denominated gold more expensive for investors of other currencies. A measure of stocks across the globe rose in a volatile session, led by gains on Wall Street. The U.S. central bank on Wednesday stunned markets by abandoning all plans to raise rates this year, a signal its three-year campaign to normalise policy might be at an end. Higher interest rates raise the opportunity costs of holding gold, which earns nothing and costs money to store and insure. Palladium touched an all-time high of $1,620.52 an ounce in the session, and was currently up 0.2 percent at $1,606.50 per ounce. Analysts attribute this to concerns about a supply crunch in the autocatalyst metal. A possible temporary export ban on precious metal scrap from Russia and hopes of economic stimulus from China have also helped lift prices. Meanwhile, platinum prices fell 0.5 percent to $854.50 per ounce, having earlier touched a three-week high of $875.15. Silver dropped 0.2 percent to $15.41.
OIL	Oil fell nearly 1 percent on Thursday, but held near 2019 highs, supported by a tightening of global stocks, OPEC production cuts and U.S. sanctions on key producers Iran and Venezuela. Brent crude futures fell 56 cents, or 0.8 percent, to $67.94 a barrel by 12:29 p.m. EDT (16:29 GMT). U.S. crude fell 32 cents, or 0.6 percent, to $59.91 a barrel after earlier hitting its highest since Nov. 12 at $60.33. U.S. energy firms last week reduced the number of oil rigs operating for a fourth week in a row with drilling slowing to its lowest in nearly a year, according to Baker Hughes energy services firm. However, global trade tensions remained a worry. The market found some support in bullish U.S. employment figures. The number of Americans filing applications for unemployment benefits fell more than expected last week, pointing to still strong labor market conditions, though the pace of job growth has slowed after last year's robust gains. Crude prices have been pushed up by almost a third since the start of 2019 by supply cuts led by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, as well as U.S. sanctions against Iran and Venezuela.

The drop in production has led to a tightening in global inventories.. That followed a 10-million-barrel fall in U.S. crude stocks last week, the largest drop since July, due to strong export and refining demand, according to the U.S. government. U.S. sanctions are disrupting supply.

Iranian oil shipments have slumped. The United States aims to cut Iran's crude exports by about 20 percent to below 1 million bpd from May by requiring importing countries to reduce purchases to avoid U.S. sanctions.

OPEC's crude output fell from a mid-2018 peak of 32.8 million barrels per day (bpd) to 30.7 million bpd in February.

However, crude output production in the United States, the world's biggest producer, returned to its record of 12.1 million bpd last week.
