GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Wall Street ended on an almost stable note on Monday, in a market that remains gloomy in the context of worries about global growth and declining Apple's share after the presentation of its video-on-demand service. The Dow Jones index gained 14.51 points, or 0.06%, to 25,516.83. The broader S & P-500 lost 2.35 points, or 0.08%, to 2,798.36. The Nasdaq Composite fell by 1.57 points (-0.02%) to 7,641.09 points. The Friday release of a lower-than-expected Markit PMI business index in the US reversed the yield gap between US three-month and ten-year government bonds for the first time since 2007, a returns that is generally perceived as a precursor to a recession. The Federal Reserve also bolstered expectations of a slowing economy last week and hinted that it will not raise rates this year. Friday's moody investor mood continued on Monday, said Paul Nolte, a manager at Kingsview Asset Management. The findings of the special prosecutor Robert Mueller, who found no evidence that Donald Trump was guilty of colluding with Russia during the 2016 presidential campaign, had little impact on the trend. This report gives the president a powerful weapon to use against his Democratic opponents and a new lease of life for reelection in 2020. Investors are suspended further advanced trade negotiations between the United States and China. A US delegation led by Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin is scheduled to visit Beijing on Thursday, March 28-29, and Vice Premier Liu He will visit the United States in early April. to negotiate.
Nikkei	Japan's Nikkei posted the biggest daily drop in three months on Monday as investors moved into bonds and other assets perceived as safe amid renewed fears of a global economic slowdown. The Nikkei share average stumbled 3 percent to 20,977.11, the lowest since mid-February and the steepest daily fall since late December. The broader Topix fell 2.5 percent to a two-week low of 1,577.41, with all of its 33 subsectors trading in negative territory. On Friday, the spread between yields of U.S. three-month Treasury bills exceeded those of 10-year notes for the first time since 2007. The inversion of the Treasury yield curve suggested the world's largest economy could slide into recession and reignited fears of a deepening slowdown in the global economy. Japanese insurers and banks, which seek higher yielding products such as U.S. bonds, sold off sharply on Monday, weighed down by the inversion of part of the U.S. yield curve.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI stock index extended its loss on Monday by falling nearly 2 percent, marking the sharpest daily drop since Oct. 23 last year, as fears of global economic slowdown spooked investors. Both the Korean won and the benchmark bond yield stumbled. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI index closed down 42.09 points, or 1.92 percent, to 2,144.86 points. Junior KOSDAQ shrank 2.25 percent. U.S. markets received a clear warning of coming recession on Friday when the spread between yields on three-month Treasury bills and 10-year notes fell below zero for the first time since 2007 after U.S. manufacturing data missed estimates. Foreigners were net sellers of 69.6 billion won ($61.36 million) worth of shares on the main board. Foreigners' sell-off pulled down the Korean won, and this has fuelled their desire for profit-taking, said Lee Kyoung-min, an analyst from Daishin Securities. Export-exposed sectors such as chemical, IT and auto shares fell considerably, Lee added. Responding to the inversion, South Korea's June futures on three-year treasury bonds hit the highest since late August 2017 during earlier trading, while the 3-month Certificate of Deposit rate was quoted at 1.90 percent. The most liquid 3-year Korean treasury bond yield fell by 3.4 basis points to 1.766 percent, marking the lowest since Jan. 4 to 1.764 percent, while the benchmark 10-year yield fell by 5.6 basis points to 1.878 percent, hovering near the lowest since November 2016.
Hang Seng & Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks posted their worst day in nearly three months on Monday, tracking a global selloff, as investors fled equities on growing fears about a U.S. recession, and on caution ahead of fresh U.S.-China trade talks. The Hang Seng index fell 2 percent to 28,523.35 points, its biggest single-day drop since Jan. 2, while the China Enterprises Index lost 2.5 percent to 11,232.07 points. On Friday, all three major U.S. stock indexes marked their biggest one-day percentage losses since Jan. 3. The Dow slid 1.8 percent, the S&P 500 was off 1.9 percent and the Nasdaq dropped 2.5 percent.

There was also caution ahead of the latest round of trade talks. United States Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin will travel to Beijing for talks scheduled to start on March 28, while a Chinese delegation led by Vice Premier Liu He will visit Washington next week, the White House said on Saturday.

Sectors fell across the board, led by energy firms. The Hang Seng energy index tumbled 4.1 percent, as China's biggest coal miner China Shenhua plummeted 6.9 percent after slower profits in 2018. Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index fell 1.65 percent, while Japan's Nikkei index closed down 3.01 percent.

➤ Chinese stocks fell on Monday tracking a global sell-off, as sentiment for equities soured on growing fears about a U.S. recession, and on caution ahead of fresh U.S.-China trade talks. The blue-chip CSI300 index fell 2.4 percent to 3,742.83 points, while the Shanghai Composite Index closed down 2 percent to 3,043.03 points. On Friday, all three major U.S. stock indexes marked their biggest one-day percentage losses since Jan. 3. The Dow slid 1.8 percent, the S&P 500 was off 1.9 percent and the Nasdaq dropped 2.5 percent. The net outflows via the northbound legs of the Stock Connect programme linking mainland and Hong Kong reached about 10.4 billion yuan ($1.55 billion) on Monday, data from Refinitiv showed. There was also caution ahead of the latest round of trade talks. United States Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin will travel to Beijing for talks scheduled to start on March 28, while a Chinese delegation led by Vice Premier Liu He will visit Washington next week, the White House said on Saturday.
