GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA

U.S. stocks edged higher on Wednesday, extending a strong start to the quarter as a rally among chipmaker shares provided a boost to the broader market on growing hopes of a trade deal between Washington and Beijing.

White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow said talks between the United States and China have progressed and both sides hope to get closer to a deal this week.

Shares of chipmakers, which rely heavily on China for revenue, especially benefited. The Philadelphia Semiconductor index jumped as much as 3% to a record high. The index ended 2.3% higher.

Advanced Micro Devices Inc shares gained 8.5%, the most on the S&P 500, and Intel Corp shares rose 2.0% after Nomura Instinet started coverage of both the stocks with "buy" ratings.

Positive sentiment on trade outweighed weak economic data. The Institute for Supply Management's U.S. services sector PMI for March was below estimates and at its lowest since August 2017.

Earlier, the ADP National Employment Report showed U.S. private employers added 129,000 jobs in March, below economists' estimates.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 39 points, or 0.15%, to 26,218.13, the S&P 500 gained 6.16 points, or 0.21%, to 2,873.4 and the Nasdaq Composite added 46.86 points, or 0.6%, to 7,895.55.

The S&P 500 came off its highs in afternoon trading after a report from cybersecurity firm UpGuard that millions of Facebook Inc's user records were inadvertently posted on Amazon.com Inc's cloud computing servers in plain sight.

Facebook shares turned negative on the report and ended 0.4% lower.

Still, dovish Federal Reserve and trade hopes set the stage for a strong start to the quarter. The S&P 500's gains put the benchmark stock index just 2% below a record high set in September.

Boeing Co capped gains on the Dow, with its shares dropping 1.5% after Baird said it expects Wall Street to cut earnings estimates "considerably" after the company reports delivery numbers next week. The numbers could reflect the 737-MAX groundings following the Ethiopian crash, Baird said.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones on the NYSE by a 1.51-to-1 ratio; on Nasdaq, a 1.43-to-1 ratio favored advancers.

The S&P 500 posted 57 new 52-week highs and three new lows; the Nasdaq Composite recorded 79 new highs and 33 new lows. Volume on U.S. exchanges was 7.24 billion shares, compared to the 7.45 billion average for the full session over the last 20 trading days.

Nikkei

Japanese stocks rose on Wednesday as optimism over U.S.-China trade talks boosted shippers and other cyclical shares while index heavyweight Fast Retailing soared after it reported strong monthly sales.

The Nikkei share average rose 0.97 percent to 21,713.21, edging closer to its best level this year of 21,860.39 touched a month ago. Shippers, among the biggest casualties of the U.S.-China trade war, gained 2.8 percent to near one-month highs, with Kawasaki Kisen rising 5.6 percent.

The Financial Times reported that top U.S. and Chinese officials have resolved most of the issues standing in the way of a deal to end their long-running trade dispute but are still haggling over how to implement and enforce the agreement, citing people briefed on the talks.

The report came on the heels of U.S. President Donald Trump's comment that the trade talks with China were going very well.

Other cyclical stocks, including chip-related firms, machinery makers and security brokers, led the gains. Shinetsu Chemical rose 4.3 percent, TDK gained 3.4 percent and Fanuc Corp advanced 2.7 percent.

Japan Display jumped 6.3 percent to a 10-week high after Reuters reported the cash-strapped firm will begin to supply organic light-emitting diode (OLED) screens for the Apple Watch later this year.

Fast Retailing Co soared 5.4 percent after it said on Tuesday that same-store sales at its Uniqlo clothing outlets in Japan rose 4.5 percent in March from a year earlier.

Japanese media reports that the operator of the Uniqlo casual clothing chain will raise starting salaries for new hires in Japan by more than 20 percent from April next year also helped the share.

As the firm has an 8.8 percent weighting in the Nikkei, that helped the benchmark index outperform the broader Topix, which rose 0.63 percent to 1,621.77. The start-up market, Mothers Index, rose 1.2 percent from a three-week low hit the previous day.

Kospi

South Korea's KOSPI stock index rose more than 1 percent on Wednesday, reaching its highest since February 27, after four straight sessions of gains. The Korean won strengthened and the benchmark bond yield rose.

Seoul stock market's main index, KOSPI, rose 26.09 points or 1.20 percent to 2,203.27 points. Officials from the world's top two economies have resolved most of the issues standing in the way of a deal to end their long-running trade dispute, the Financial Times reported, citing sources.

The United States and China "expect to make more headway" in trade talks this week, White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow said.

Shares of S.Korea game makers jumped after China approved imported online games. Foreigners were net buyers of 273.9 billion won worth of shares on the main board.

The won quoted at 1,134.3 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.19 percent higher than its previous close at 1,136.4.

In offshore trading, the won quoted at 1,134.1 per U.S. dollar, up 0.2 percent from the previous day, while in one-year non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract quoted at 1,132.9 per dollar.

MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan gained 0.91 percent, after U.S. stocks traded water. Japanese stocks rose 0.97 percent. The KOSPI has risen 7.95 percent so far this year, and fell 1.5 percent in the previous 30 trading sessions.

The current price-to-earnings ratio is 12.10, the dividend yield is 1.28 percent and the market capitalisation is 1,242.04 trillion won.

Trading volume during the session on the KOSPI was 344.29 million shares and, of the total traded issues of 897, the number of advancing shares were 599.

The won has lost 1.6 percent against the U.S. dollar this year.

In money and debt markets, June futures on three-year treasury bonds fell 0.08 points to 109.57, while the 3-month Certificate of Deposit rate quoted at 1.88 percent.

The most liquid 3-year Korean treasury bond yield rose by 1.1 basis points to 1.718 percent, while the benchmark 10-year yield rose by 2.5 basis points to 1.882 percent.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ Hong Kong stocks closed at near 10-month highs on Wednesday, aided by more evidence of economic recovery on the mainland and signs of progress in U.S.-China trade talks.

The Hang Seng index rose 1.2 percent to 29,986.39, while the China Enterprises Index gained 1.4 percent to 11,705.16, its highest close since June 15, 2018.

Activity in China's services sector picked up to a 14-month high in March as demand improved at home and abroad, a private business survey showed on Wednesday, adding to signs that government stimulus policies are gradually kicking in.

The findings were largely in line with those of an official gauge on the non-manufacturing sector released on Sunday, which showed services activity picked up in March as new orders rose more quickly.

China's central bank is expected to cut banks' cash reserve requirements again soon to bolster financial system liquidity as it looks to support the slowing economy, analysts said, as market speculation over another policy move grows.

Investors also cheered the progress in Sino-U.S. trade talks. The United States and China "expect to make more headway" in trade talks this week, White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow said on Tuesday.

Stocks rallied across the board, led by materials and IT firms. The Hang Seng IT index climbed 2.8 percent, as gaming giant Tencent ended up 3.3 percent at an eight-month high.

Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was firmer by 1.02 percent, while Japan's Nikkei index closed up 0.97 percent.

The yuan was quoted at 6.7075 per U.S. dollar at 08:16 GMT, 0.22 percent firmer than the previous close of 6.7225. The top gainers among H-shares were Guangzhou Automobile Group Co Ltd up 4.85 percent, followed by Huatai Securities Co Ltd, rising 4.29 percent and China National Building Material Co Ltd, up by 4.07 percent.

The three biggest H-shares percentage decliners were China Telecom Corp Ltd, which was down 3.36 percent, China Gas Holdings Ltd, which fell 1.8 percent and CNOOC Ltd, down by 0.9 percent.

About 2.08 billion Hang Seng index shares were traded, roughly 101.9 percent of the market's 30-day moving average of 2.04 billion shares. The volume traded in the previous trading session was 1.92 billion. At close, China's A-shares were trading at a premium of 25.01 percent over the Hong Kong-listed H-shares.

➤ China stocks on Wednesday closed at their highest levels since March 2018, aided by more evidence of economic recovery and signs of progress in U.S.-China trade talks.

The blue-chip CSI300 index rose 1.3 percent, to 4,022.16 points, while the Shanghai Composite Index closed up 1.2 percent at 3,216.30 points. Both indexes ended at their highest levels since late March 2018.

Activity in China's services sector picked up to a 14-month high in March as demand improved at home and abroad, a private business survey showed on Wednesday, adding to signs that government stimulus policies are gradually kicking in.

The findings were largely in line with those of an official gauge on the non-manufacturing sector released on Sunday, which showed services activity picked up in March as new orders rose more quickly. Construction, in particular, showed strength, likely reflecting government efforts to fast-track more infrastructure projects to kindle domestic demand. China's central bank is expected to cut banks' cash reserve requirements again soon to bolster financial system liquidity as it looks to support the slowing economy, analysts said, as market speculation over another policy move grows.

Investors also cheered the progress in Sino-U.S. trade talks. The United States and China "expect to make more headway" in trade talks this week, White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow said on Tuesday.

Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was firmer by 0.93 percent, while Japan's Nikkei index closed up 0.97 percent. At 07:14 GMT, the yuan was quoted at 6.7089 per U.S. dollar, 0.2 percent firmer than the previous close of 6.7225.

So far this year, the Shanghai stock index is up 29 percent and the CSI300 has risen 33.6 percent, while China's H-share index listed in Hong Kong is up 15.4 percent. Shanghai stocks have risen 4.06 percent this month.

About 43.05 billion shares were traded on the Shanghai exchange, roughly 104.4 percent of the market's 30-day moving average of 41.24 billion shares a day. The volume in the previous trading session was 44.71 billion. As of 07:15 GMT, China's A-shares were trading at a premium of 25.26 percent over the Hong Kong-listed H-shares.
