GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Technology stocks led Wall Street slightly higher on Wednesday, as U.S. inflation data proved to be benign and the minutes from the Federal Reserve's March meeting were unsurprising. The blue-chip Dow, held back by industrial stocks, squeaked into positive territory at the closing bell. The three major U.S. indexes were relatively unchanged following the release of the Fed's minutes, which reaffirmed the central bank's patience regarding future interest rate hikes. Core U.S. consumer prices, which strip out volatile food and energy segments, rose at the slowest annual pace in over a year, according to the Labor Department's CPI report. The tepid inflation data further supported the Fed's decision to suspend its three-year, interest-rate-hike campaign. Top executives from some of the largest U.S. banks testified before Congress for the first time since the 2007-2009 financial crisis, just days before the banks report quarterly results amid lowered expectations by analysts. Profit forecasts for the first quarter have dropped steadily in the last six months, with S&P 500 earnings now seen falling by 2.5%, which would mark the first year-on-year contraction since 2016, according to Refinitiv data. The earnings season began in earnest as Delta Air Lines raised its revenue forecast and posted better-than-expected profits, lifting the airliner's stock by 1.6%. Levi Strauss & Co posted a 7% rise in revenue in its first earnings report since returning to the public market. Its shares rose 4.0%. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 6.58 points, or 0.03%, to 26,157.16, the S&P 500 gained 10.01 points, or 0.35%, to 2,888.21, and the Nasdaq Composite added 54.97 points, or 0.69%, to 7,964.24. Of the 11 major sectors in the S&P 500, eight ended the session in positive territory. Boeing Co weighed on industrials as the plane maker's shares extended losses, closing down 1.1%. Tesla Inc got a boost after U.S. lawmakers introduced legislation that would expand the electric vehicle tax credit. The company's stock advanced 1.4%.
Nikkei	Japan's Nikkei dropped to a one-week low on Wednesday as escalating trade tensions between the United States and Europe and worries about the global growth outlook sapped investor confidence. U.S. President Donald Trump said he would impose tariffs on $11 billion of European goods, raising fears that differences over aircraft subsidies could morph into a wider trade war. Not helping the mood, the International Monetary Fund cut its global economic growth forecast and said a sharp downturn could require world leaders to coordinate stimulus measures. The Nikkei share average ended 0.5 percent lower at 21,687.57, the lowest closing level since April 3. All 33 of the Topix's subsectors were in negative territory, with cyclical machinery and technology stocks underperforming. Sony Corp tumbled 2.5 percent, Hitachi Ltd and TDK Corp both dropped 1.6 percent and Nintendo Co declined 1 percent. Elsewhere, Japan Display Inc dived 8.1 percent after saying it had yet to reach an agreement for a tie-up with an external party that it had said would be sealed by the first half of this week.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI stock index closed higher on Wednesday amid hopes that a summit between Seoul and Washington would jumpstart stalled denuclearisation talks with North Korea. The won strengthened, while the benchmark bond yield dropped. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI closed up 10.83 points or 0.49 percent at 2,224.39 points. The index extended gains into a ninth consecutive session on Wednesday. Senior South Korean officials, including President Moon Jae-in, are launching a series of meetings with their U.S. counterparts in a bid to jumpstart stalled denuclearisation talks with North Korea and mend fraying ties in their alliance. Moon will meet U.S. President Donald Trump for a summit in Washington on April 11, the White House said on Friday. The lack of progress with North Korea has become a domestic problem for Moon, who has staked much of his political capital on improving relations with Pyongyang. Foreigners were net sellers of 3.8 billion won worth of shares on the main board. The won was quoted at 1,138.6 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.31 percent higher than its previous close at 1,142.1.
Hang Seng & Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks ended lower on Wednesday, amid worries over slower global economic growth and trade tensions. The Hang Seng index fell 0.1 percent to 30,119.56, while the China Enterprises Index lost 0.4 percent to 11,764. The global economy is slowing more than expected and a sharp downturn could require world leaders to coordinate stimulus measures, the International Monetary Fund said on Tuesday as it cut its forecast for world economic growth this year. Global trade anxiety also dampened sentiment.

U.S. President Donald Trump threatened to impose tariffs on $11 billion worth of European Union products, heightening tensions over a long-running transatlantic aircraft subsidy dispute.

Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was firmer by 0.11 percent, while Japan's Nikkei index closed down 0.53 percent.

The yuan was quoted at 6.7165 per U.S. dollar at 08:14 GMT, 0.07 percent weaker than the previous close of 6.712.

➤ Chinese stocks recouped earlier losses to end higher on Wednesday, boosted by strength in consumer and healthcare companies.

The blue-chip CSI300 index rose 0.3 percent, to 4,085.85, while the Shanghai Composite Index closed up 0.1 percent at 3,241.93 points.

Both indexes had lost ground in early trading amid worries over global economic growth.

The global economy is slowing more than expected and a sharp downturn could require world leaders to coordinate stimulus measures, the International Monetary Fund said on Tuesday as it cut its forecast for world economic growth this year.

Sector performance was mixed for the day, with gains in consumer and healthcare firms offsetting losses in other sectors.

The CSI300 consumer discretionary index rose 2.4 percent, while the healthcare index climbed 1.5 percent.

Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was firmer by 0.15 percent, while Japan's Nikkei index closed down 0.53 percent.
