GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • New home prices in China grew slightly faster in March after growth slowed the previous month, putting a floor under the cooling market, as Beijing rolled out stimulus to boost the economy. • Australia's central bank believes a cut in interest rates would be "appropriate" should inflation stay low and unemployment trend higher, though there was still no strong case for a move in the near term. The Reserve Bank of Australia (RBA) also sees the likelihood of a higher cash rate in the near-term as low, marking a dovish turn in policy compared to last month when it saw the risks for rates to move in either direction as more evenly balanced. • German investor morale improved for the sixth month in a row due to a resilient global economy and a delay to Britain's departure from the EU, a survey showed on Tuesday, but the growth outlook for Europe's largest economy remains clouded by external risks. • British workers' pay grew at its joint fastest pace in over a decade as employers extended their hiring spree, adding to signs that uncertainty about Brexit is prompting firms to take on workers rather than commit to longer-term investments. • Several European Central Bank policymakers think the bank's economic projections are too optimistic as growth weakness in China and trade tensions linger, four sources with direct knowledge of discussions said. • U.S. manufacturing output was unchanged in March after two straight monthly declines, resulting in the first quarterly drop in production since President Donald Trump was elected. • President Donald Trump said on Monday he believed the United States would emerge from its trade dispute with China as a winner, no matter what happened.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Stocks around the globe rose on Tuesday to six-month highs as positive economic data in China and Germany boosted investor sentiment, though concerns about the impact of U.S. policy on the healthcare sector paused Wall Street's rally. • Even though Wall Street stocks treaded water, an advance in Chinese and European shares helped push the MSCI world equity index to a six-month high. Positive data, including a quicker pace of growth in Chinese home prices and improving sentiment among German investors, bolstered global equities.
FOREX	The euro fell against the dollar on Tuesday after reports that some European Central Bank policymakers think the bank's economic projections are too optimistic. Several ECB policymakers said the bank's economic projections are too rosy as weak growth in China and trade tensions linger, four sources with direct knowledge of discussions said. The "significant minority" of rate-setters in last week's policy meeting expressed doubt that a long projected growth recovery is coming in the second half of the year and some even questioned the accuracy of the ECB's projection models, given their long history of downward revisions, the sources said. The release of Purchasing Managers Indexes (PMIs) for the manufacturing and service sectors in Europe on Thursday will be closely watched as traders look for signals of improving growth in the region. The Australian dollar was little changed on the day after earlier weakening after the Reserve Bank of Australia said that a cut in interest rates would be "appropriate" should inflation stay low and unemployment trend higher. Sterling also slipped after the Guardian newspaper reported that talks between Prime Minister Theresa May and the opposition Labour Party regarding Britain's exit from the European Union had stalled. The Labour Party denied the report. Traders are also waiting for Chinese gross domestic product data on Wednesday, which may indicate the worst is over for the global economy. Chinese exports and credit data last week signaled some stabilization in economic conditions.

GOLD	Gold dropped 1 percent on Tuesday to its lowest level of 2019, as a string of robust economic data boosted demand for riskier assets like equities while bullion was further weighed down by gains in the U.S. dollar. Spot gold was down 1.1 percent to $1,273.91 per ounce as of 1:45 p.m. EDT (1745 GMT), having earlier slipped to its lowest since Dec. 27 at $1,272.70. U.S. gold futures settled 1.1 percent lower at $1,277.20 an ounce. Indicating strong appeal for riskier assets, Wall Street equities climbed on better-than-expected results from healthcare giants, adding to momentum in global equities driven by the data from China and improved sentiment in Germany. The dollar also firmed, making the yellow metal more expensive for holders of other currencies. Investors are now waiting on China's gross domestic product numbers for further cues on global growth. A Reuters poll forecast first-quarter growth to have cooled to 6.3 percent, the weakest pace in at least 27 years, but a flurry of measures to boost domestic demand may have put a floor under activity in March. On the technical front, gold's break below key support levels, including the 100- and 50-day moving averages, signaled a further downside to prices, analysts and traders said. Among other precious metals, silver dipped 0.2 percent to $14.97 an ounce, having hit $14.81 in the previous session, its lowest since Dec. 26. Spot platinum fell 0.5 percent, to $881.00 per ounce, while palladium was down 0.6 percent to $1,353.26.
OIL	Oil prices rose 1 percent on Tuesday, as fighting in Libya and falling Venezuelan and Iranian exports raised concerns over tightening global supply, but uncertainty surrounding an OPEC-led production cut limited gains. Brent crude futures rose 56 cents, or 0.8 percent, to $71.74 a barrel. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures rose 65 cents, or 1 percent, to settle at $64.05 a barrel. In Libya, fighting between Khalifa Haftar's Libyan National Army and the internationally recognized government has raised the prospect of lower supplies from the OPEC member. U.S. sanctions on two other members, Iran and Venezuela, are already cutting shipments. Iran's crude oil exports have dropped in April to their lowest daily level this year, tanker data showed and industry sources said. Adding downward pressure, however, were concerns about Russia's willingness to stick with OPEC-led supply cuts and expectations of higher U.S. inventories. Oil prices have gained this year more than 30 percent, helped by the deal between the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and other producers including Russia. The group has been cutting output since Jan. 1 and will decide in June whether to continue the arrangement. Gazprom Neft, the oil arm of Russian gas giant Gazprom, expects the global oil deal between OPEC and its allies to end in the first half of the year, a company official said on Tuesday. Russia and the producer group may decide to boost output to fight for market share with the United States, TASS news agency cited Finance Minister Anton Siluanov as saying on Saturday. Also weighing on prices, U.S. crude inventories are expected to have risen by 1.7 million barrels last week, the fourth straight weekly increase. However, gasoline stockpiles were forecast to have fallen for nine straight weeks with refining rates at below 90 percent of total capacity since early February due to seasonal maintenance. The first of this week's stockpile reports is due at 4:30 p.m. EDT (2030 GMT) from the American Petroleum Institute, followed by government data on Wednesday.
