

Daily Outlook

GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	The S&amp;P 500 set an intraday record high on Monday, bolstering the view that the decade-long bull market has further to run, after consumer spending rose in March and inflation data was benign. The benchmark index topped its intraday record of 2,940.91 hit on Sept. 21, rising to a session high of 2,949.52. The S&amp;P 500 is now up more than 17% for the year to date. The index along with the Nasdaq posted another record close as well on Monday. Hopes of a resolution of the U.S.-China trade war, upbeat earnings and a dovish Federal Reserve have powered the rally in stocks this year, and even though the Monday's gains were small, strategists said recent new highs encourage further buying. A Commerce Department report showed U.S. consumer spending increased by the most in more than 9-1/2 years in March, but a key inflation measure posted its smallest annual gain in 14 months. Tame inflation supports the Fed's recent decision to suspend further interest rate increases this year. As trade talks enter their last leg, U.S. negotiators head to China on Tuesday to try to hammer out details to end the protracted tariff spat between the two countries. U.S. Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin, in a television interview that aired on Monday, said he hopes that the latest talks between the United States and China may seal a trade deal. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 11.06 points, or 0.04%, to 26,554.39, the S&amp;P 500 gained 3.15 points, or 0.11%, to 2,943.03 and the Nasdaq Composite added 15.46 points, or 0.19%, to 8,161.85. The Fed starts a two-day meeting on Tuesday, at the end of which a decision on interest rates will be announced. Another busy week of earnings is expected, with results due from Google parent Alphabet Inc and Apple Inc among other top names.
Nikkei	Japan's financial markets are closed from Saturday, April 27 to Monday, May 6 for the Golden Week holidays. Reuters will resume coverage of Japanese stock markets and government bonds when markets reopen on May 7.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI stock index rose 1.7 percent on Monday, the most since since Jan. 9, after U.S. first-quarter economic growth data offset fears of recession. The Korean won strengthened, while the benchmark bond yield fell. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI rose 37.12 points to 2,216.43. Foreigners were net buyers of 4.0 billion won worth of shares on the main board. U.S. economic growth accelerated in the first quarter, but the burst in growth was driven by a smaller trade deficit and the largest accumulation of unsold merchandise since 2015, temporary boosters that are seen weighing on the economy later this year. The won was quoted at 1,158.5 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.22 percent higher than its previous close at 1,161.0. In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,158.7 per U.S. dollar, down 0.1 percent from the previous day, while in one-year non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,157.5 per dollar. MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan rose 0.51 percent, after gains in U.S. stocks. The KOSPI has risen 8.59 percent so far this year, and gained 0.1 percent in the previous 30 trading sessions. The current price-to-earnings ratio is 12.10, the dividend yield is 1.28 percent and the market capitalisation is 1,242.04 trillion won. The trading volume during the session on the KOSPI index was 373.53 million shares and, of the total traded issues of 889, the number of advancing shares was 548.
Hang Seng &amp; Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks ended higher on Monday, tracking gains in other Asian markets, after strong U.S. first-quarter economic growth and data showing profits at Chinese industrial firms grew for the first time in four months. The Hang Seng index rose 1.0 percent, to 29,892.81 while the China Enterprises Index gained 1.1 percent, to 11,638.18. U.S. economic growth accelerated in the first quarter, but the burst in growth was driven by a smaller trade deficit and the largest accumulation of unsold merchandise since 2015, temporary boosters that are seen weighing on the economy later this year. In China, fresh data showed industrial profits grew in March after four months of contraction, but analysts said sentiment remained fragile. Economists polled by Reuters expect factory activity in the world's second-largest economy to grow at a steady but modest pace in April. All eyes were on progress in Sino-U.S. trade negotiations.

U.S. negotiators head to China on Tuesday to try to hammer out details to end the two countries' trade war, including the shape of an enforcement mechanism, the success or failure of which could set the trajectory of ties for years to come.

➤ China's blue-chip stocks on Monday retreated from steep losses in the previous week, as foreign investors looked for bargains after upbeat industrial profit data showed signs of recovery in the world's second-largest economy.

The blue-chip CSI300 index rose 0.3 percent, to 3,900.33 points, while the Shanghai Composite Index closed down 0.7 percent to 3,062.50 points.

Both indexes on Friday posted their worst weekly drop in 28 on policy support worries.

Profit at China's industrial firms grew in March, rebounding from four months of contraction, adding to optimism the world's second-largest economy may be starting to stabilise.

China's factory activity likely expanded at a steady but modest clip in April, marking the second straight month of improving business conditions, as government growth-boosting measures buoy the vast manufacturing sector.

That the PBOC could temper the pace of its policy easing amid dovish stance of other global central banks, means it does not resort to flood-like stimulus and China's economic performance is relatively better, Haitong Securities said in report.

From a medium- to long-term perspective, there are no signs of a bubble in the overall valuations of A-shares market, and extensive medium- and long-term money will continue to flow into the A-shares market as China's economy gradually bottoms out, Wanlian Securities wrote in note.

It is hard for China's monetary policy to take a sharp turn, as the downward pressure remains for the country's economic growth, the brokerage added.

All eyes were on the development of the Sino-U.S. trade negotiations.

U.S. negotiators head to China on Tuesday to try to hammer out details to end the two countries' trade war, including the shape of an enforcement mechanism, the success or failure of which could set the trajectory of ties for years to come.

Gains were led by blue-chips, with the Shanghai SE50 index, an index tracking the 50 largest companies listed in Shanghai, ending up 1.6 percent, as investors cheered solid earnings at those sector leaders.
