GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Activity in China's services sector further improved in April, with export sales rising at a record pace, a private business survey showed on Monday, although the longer-term outlook for new orders stayed subdued due to global economic uncertainties. • U.S. President Donald Trump on Monday slammed China over its trade practices, saying the United States was losing billions to Beijing and vowing to protect American commerce as tension escalated following his weekend threat to hike tariffs. • China's central bank said on Monday it will cut reserve requirement ratios (RRRs) to release about 280 billion yuan ($41 billion) for some small and medium-sized banks, in a targeted move to help companies struggling amid an economic slowdown. • Australian job advertisements in newspapers and on the internet slipped for a sixth straight month in April, but the pace of decline slowed in a sign of possible stabilisation. • The European Central Bank must have a monetary policy case if it is to consider a multi-tier deposit rate, outgoing ECB chief economist Peter Praet said on Monday. • British Prime Minister Theresa May has carried out "scenario planning" for a second Brexit referendum in case she is forced by parliament to hold one, the Daily Telegraph newspaper reported on Monday. • Bank of Canada Governor Stephen Poloz on Monday said the housing sector was solid despite a series of challenges and called for a more flexible mortgage market to help make the country's financial system safer. • U.S. President Donald Trump's escalation of a trade war with China left plans in limbo on Monday for high-level negotiations later this week to end the dispute.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Wall Street's indexes and bond yields ended down but well above their session lows while oil futures settled higher as investors bet that U.S. President Donald Trump's threats to raise tariffs on China would not materialize. • Trump tweeted on Sunday that the United States would raise tariffs on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods this week, causing investors to seek safety and flee from risky assets. • Oil futures reversed course to settle slightly higher after a volatile day as rising tensions between the United States and Iran helped buoy prices.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar slipped to a five-week low against the yen and fell versus other currencies on Monday after U.S. President Donald Trump said he would sharply raise tariffs on Chinese goods this week, risking the derailment of trade talks between Washington and Beijing. Volume, though, was thin overall with London and Tokyo markets closed for holidays. Trump on Monday slammed China over its trade practices, saying the United States was losing billions on trade with China. The comments followed his weekend threat to ratchet up tariffs on $200 billion worth of imports from China, even as ongoing talks between Washington and Beijing as were set to continue this week. On Friday, Trump had cited progress in trade talks and praised his relationship with Chinese President Xi Jinping. The dollar index, which measures the U.S. currency versus a basket of six major rivals, was little changed at 97.527. Increased trade tensions between Washington and Beijing have generally been supportive of the dollar as investors view the United States to be in better shape than its rivals to weather a trade war. Against the Japanese yen, which tends to benefit during geopolitical or financial stress as Japan is the world's biggest creditor nation, the dollar fell 0.2% to 110.88 yen. The greenback dipped to a five-week low of 110.29 earlier in the session. Asian currencies were largely weaker with the Chinese yuan slipping almost 1% to near its lowest levels this year, around 6.80 per dollar. Both the Mexican peso and the Turkish lira fell against the U.S. currency. Other currencies whose fortunes are linked to the Chinese economy such as the Australian dollar and the New Zealand dollar, also declined.

	Sterling, meanwhile, fell 0.6% to $1.3101 and reversed some of Friday's gains, after the opposition Labor Party accused Prime Minister Theresa May of leaking details of the compromise under discussion and jeopardizing talks.
GOLD	Gold edged up on Monday as a slide in global share markets after Trump administration's threat of further tariffs on China prompted investors to favor safe-haven assets, but bullion's upside was capped by a firm dollar. Spot gold gained 0.2 percent to $1,281.76 per ounce as of 02:22 p.m. EDT (1822 GMT). U.S. gold futures settled up 0.2 percent at $1,283.8 an ounce. The U.S. dollar firmed against most major currencies on Monday after Trump said he would raise tariffs on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods this week. Trump said he would target a further $325 billion of Chinese goods with 25 percent tariffs "shortly," essentially covering all products imported into the United States from China. Stocks around the world tumbled and oil prices slumped after Trump's announcement, improving the appeal of bullion, seen as an alternative investment during times of political and financial uncertainties along with the Japanese yen and U.S. Treasuries. Also helping bullion was news, disclosed by Trump's national security adviser John Bolton on Sunday, that the United States was deploying a carrier strike group and a bomber task force to the Middle East to send a clear message to Iran. Reflecting investors sentiment toward gold, speculators switched to a net long position in COMEX gold in the week to April 30, the U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) said on Friday. Meanwhile, holdings of SPDR Gold Trust, the world's largest gold backed exchange, slipped to their lowest since Oct. 11. Holdings fell 0.6 percent on Friday. The U.S. tariffs on China, the world's biggest auto market, also weighed on palladium prices. The auto-catalyst metal slipped 2.7 percent to $1,334.01 per ounce. Silver fell 0.2 percent to $14.90 per ounce, while platinum gained 0.4 percent, to $872.
OIL	Oil futures edged higher in volatile trade on Monday as rising tensions between the United States and Iran buoyed prices after they touched a one-month low following U.S. President Donald Trump's threat that he may raise tariffs on Chinese goods. Brent crude futures rose 39 cents to settle at $71.24 a barrel. The global benchmark earlier sank to $68.79 a barrel, its lowest since April 2. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures rose 31 cents to settle at $62.25 a barrel. WTI's session low was $60.04 a barrel, the weakest since March 29. The United States is deploying a carrier strike group and a bomber task force to the Middle East to send a clear message to Iran that any attack on U.S. interests or its allies will be met with "unrelenting force," U.S. national security adviser John Bolton said on Sunday. The development injected a risk premium into the market. Acting U.S. Defense Secretary Patrick Shanahan said he had approved sending the carrier strike group and bombers to the Middle East because of a "credible threat by Iranian regime forces." Prices fell early after Trump said on Twitter on Sunday that tariffs on $200 billion of goods would increase on Friday to 25 percent, reversing his February decision to keep them at 10 percent due to progress in trade talks. Trump early on Monday appeared to defend his Sunday statement, citing the trade deficit between the United States and China. "Sorry, we're not going to be doing that anymore!" he tweeted. The comments worried investors about trade talk progress between the world's two largest economies and ignited concerns that ongoing tensions could hurt global oil demand. China's Foreign Ministry spokesman Geng Shuang told a news briefing on Monday that a Chinese delegation was still preparing to go to the United States for trade talks. "We are also in the process of understanding the relevant situation," he said. Within the oil industry, there are signs of a further rise in output from the United States, where crude production has surged by more than 2 million barrels per day (bpd) since early 2018 to a record 12.3 million bpd. The United States is now the world's biggest oil producer, ahead of Russia and Saudi Arabia.
