

Daily Outlook

GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Wall Street sank on Monday after China defied Washington by announcing retaliatory tariffs, the latest salvo in the two countries' increasingly belligerent trade war, sending investors fleeing equities for less risky assets. All three major U.S. indexes lost ground in a widespread sell-off, with the tech-heavy Nasdaq posting its biggest one-day percentage loss this year. The S&P 500 and the Dow both had their largest percentage drop since Jan 3. China said it would impose higher tariffs on $60 billion in U.S. goods despite President Donald Trump's warnings not to retaliate against additional tariffs on Chinese imports announced by the White House on Friday. The move stoked fears of a global economic downturn. U.S. Treasury yields fell to six-week lows, with 10-year yields falling below those of 3-month bills, an inversion seen by many as a potential harbinger of recession. Gold prices rose to a near three-month high. The CBOE Volatility index, a gauge of investor anxiety, posted its biggest daily point gain so far this year. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 617.38 points, or 2.38%, to 25,324.99, the S&P 500 lost 69.53 points, or 2.41%, to 2,811.87 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 269.92 points, or 3.41%, to 7,647.02. Of the 11 major sectors of the S&P 500, only utilities ended the session in the black. Trade-sensitive tech companies suffered the largest percentage decline. Among stocks particularly vulnerable to U.S.-China tariffs, Boeing Co slid 4.9% and Caterpillar Inc fell 4.6% while the Philadelphia Chip index was down 4.7%, posting its biggest percentage drop since Jan. 3 and extending last week's 6% decline. Shares of Apple Inc sank 5.8% on the double whammy of heightened trade tensions and a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court to allow an antitrust lawsuit accusing the company of monopolizing the iPhone app market.
Nikkei	Japan's Nikkei dropped on Monday as most cyclical sectors lost ground after the trade war between the United States and China escalated, while a fall in U.S. futures hurt sentiment. The Nikkei share average ended 0.7% lower at 21,191.28, the lowest closing since March 28. The broader Topix shed 0.5% to 1,541.14. Mini S&P futures was down 1.1% as the Nikkei closed. The dollar was down 0.2% for the day at 109.70 yen The United States and China appeared at a deadlock over trade negotiations as Washington demanded promises of concrete changes to Chinese law and Beijing said it would not swallow any "bitter fruit" that harmed its interests. The trade war between the world's top two economies escalated on Friday, with the United States hiking tariffs on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods after President Donald Trump said Beijing "broke the deal" by reneging on earlier commitments made during months of negotiations. Early on Monday, the Nikkei shed as much as 1% and the Topix to fall to near a February low, but selling has eased as investors digested the news and decided that it's too early to assess the impact from the latest developments of the trade talks at this stage. If the Topix falls below its February low of 1,536.65, it will be the lowest since Jan. 16. Meanwhile, White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow said on Sunday that Trump and his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping are likely to meet during a G20 summit in Japan at the end of June and discuss trade. While Japanese indexes fell on Monday, the losses were sharper last year when Trump first imposed tariffs on imports from China.
Kospi	South Korea's KOSPI index on Monday ended at its lowest since January 15 on anxiety over whether Washington and Beijing could make headway in their trade talks. The won dropped to its lowest since 2017, while the benchmark bond yield was unchanged. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI ended down 29.03 points, or 1.38%, at 2,079.01 points. The junior KOSDAQ market lost nearly 2%. The United States and China appeared at a deadlock over trade negotiations as Washington demanded promises of concrete changes to Chinese law and Beijing said it would not swallow any "bitter fruit" that harmed its interests. Foreigners were net sellers of 137.9 billion won ($116.12 million) worth of shares on the main board. Deepening the woes in the domestic equity market, the Korean won was quoted at 1,187.5 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.88% lower than its previous close at 1,177.0. The won dropped to its lowest since Jan. 11, 2017.

 In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,187.8 per U.S. dollar, down 1.1% from the previous day, while in one-year non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,185.8 per dollar.
 MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan was down 0.76%, after U.S. stocks closed firmer. Japanese stocks fell 0.72%.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ Markets in Hong Kong were closed Monday for a public holiday.

➤ China's main equity indexes finished lower on Monday and the yuan weakened to a four-month low as investors' hopes for a deal to end an escalating trade war between the United States and China were dashed by signs of a stalemate in trade negotiations.
 The benchmark Shanghai Composite index ended the day down 1.2% and the blue-chip CSI300 index lost 1.7%, resuming the previous week's downward slide.
 For the month, the Shanghai Composite is down 5.7%, while the CSI300 has lost 6.2%.
 Losses in the CSI300 on Monday were led by financial firms, which dropped 2 percent. The consumer staples sector ended down 0.06 percent, the real estate index lost 0.43 percent and the healthcare sub-index fell 0.58 percent.
 While they recorded sharp losses for the whole of last week, both the Shanghai Composite and CSI300 had surged more than 3% on Friday, lifted by hopes that the continuation of talks could bring an agreement between Beijing and Washington, despite President Donald Trump hiking tariffs on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods.
 But those hopes ebbed on Monday as Beijing and Washington appeared to be at an impasse, as Washington demanded promises of concrete changes to Chinese law and Beijing said it would not swallow any "bitter fruit" that harmed its interests.
 With no signs of a quick solution in sight, investors continued to await Beijing's response to the higher tariffs.
 On Monday, China's foreign ministry said the country will never surrender to foreign pressure, but declined to comment on what countermeasures Beijing planned in response to the tariff hike.
 Investors are watching to see how Chinese policymakers plan to offset the impact of the stiffer tariffs on both the economy and financial markets, analysts at Citi said, adding that Beijing's options include support for stock markets and the yuan, as well as monetary policy measures and liquidity injections.
