GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The pace of growth in Australian wages stagnated last quarter, adding to evidence that exceptional strength in the labour market is not enough to boost pay rewards, consumer spending and inflation. • China reported surprisingly weaker growth in retail sales and industrial output for April on Wednesday, adding pressure on Beijing to roll out more stimulus as the trade war with the United States escalates. • Canada's annual inflation rate edged up to 2.0% in April from 1.9% in March, driven in part by a carbon levy that pushed up gasoline prices in six provinces, Statistics Canada data showed on Wednesday. • Germany's spluttering economy returned to growth in the first quarter as consumers spent more freely and construction activity picked up, but the government said the outlook remained clouded by trade disputes. • Brexit-supporting rebels in British Prime Minister Theresa May's party said on Wednesday they would vote down her European Union divorce deal when she brings it back to parliament early next month. • U.S. retail sales unexpectedly fell in April as households cut back on purchases of motor vehicles and a range of other goods, pointing to a slowdown in economic growth after a temporary boost from exports and inventories in the first quarter. • U.S. President Donald Trump is expected to delay a decision on imposing tariffs on imported cars and parts by up to six months, three Trump administration officials told Reuters, a decision expected to relieve a broad swath of U.S. industry. • Strong U.S. economic growth and subdued inflation mean there is no strong argument for a rate hike or cut right now, though business confidence is fragile, a Federal Reserve policymaker said on Wednesday.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • U.S. and European stock indexes gained on Wednesday after news that U.S. President Donald Trump planned to delay tariffs on auto imports, offsetting earlier pressure on equities from weak U.S. and Chinese economic data that helped depress bond yields. • Trump is expected to delay a decision on tariffs on imported cars and parts by up to six months, three administration officials told Reuters. • Meanwhile, U.S. Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said he will likely travel to China soon to continue talks as Washington and Beijing seek to resolve their months-long trade war.
FOREX	The euro retraced earlier losses against the U.S. dollar on Wednesday after administration officials said that U.S. President Donald Trump is expected to delay a decision on tariffs on imported cars and parts by up to six months. A formal announcement is expected by Saturday, the due date for Trump to make a decision on recommendations by the Commerce Department to protect the U.S. auto industry from imports on national security grounds. The greenback has benefited from its safe-haven status even as the United States and China remain locked in a trade war. Trump threatened higher tariffs on billions of dollars of Chinese imports last week, and Beijing responded with planned tariff hikes of its own on Monday. The euro had weakened earlier on Wednesday as Italy's Deputy Prime Minister Matteo Salvini criticized European Union rules for the second day. "If there are European rules that are starving a continent, these rules must be changed," Salvini said on Wednesday, a day after he said the government was ready to breach EU rules that seek to limit budget deficits and curb excessive debt. Salvini's comments overshadowed data showing Germany's economy returned to growth in the March quarter as householders spent more freely and construction activity picked up. Safe-haven currencies including the Japanese yen and U.S. dollar were also boosted after weak economic data in China raised new concerns about growth there.

	China reported surprisingly weaker growth in retail sales and industrial output for April, adding pressure on Beijing to roll out more monetary stimulus as the trade war with the U.S. escalates. U.S. data on Wednesday showed that U.S. retail sales unexpectedly fell in April as households cut back on purchases of motor vehicles and a range of other goods while U.S. industrial production also dropped last month.
GOLD	Gold steadied on Wednesday as share markets rose but concerns about global economic growth and the U.S.-China trade fight kept the metal supported near a one-month peak. Spot gold was steady at $1,296.64 per ounce as of 2:07 p.m. EDT (1807 GMT). U.S. gold futures settled up 0.1% at $1,297.80 an ounce. Concerns that the trade dispute between two world's biggest economies could be protracted and impact the global economy have boosted bullion's appeal over the past couple of days. The metal, often seen as an alternative investment during times of political and financial uncertainty, rose to its highest level since April 11 at $1,303.26 on Tuesday. Gold erased earlier gains as U.S. and European stock indexes turned positive Wednesday after news that U.S. President Donald Trump planned to delay tariffs on auto imports. Treasury yields fell, with the two-year yield at its lowest in 15 months as traders raised bets on a Federal Reserve rate cut after U.S. retail sales missed expectations. U.S. retail sales unexpectedly fell in April as households cut back on purchases of motor vehicles and a range of other goods. Another report showed declining output of cars and machinery led to a surprise fall in U.S. factory production for April. China also reported surprisingly weaker growth in retail sales and industrial output for April on Wednesday. Among other precious metals, silver was up 0.1% at $14.80 an ounce, while platinum fell 1.6% to $842. Palladium rose 0.4% to $1,341.51 an ounce.
OIL	Oil futures edged up on Wednesday as worries that rising tensions in the Middle East could hit global supplies overshadowed an unexpected build in U.S. crude inventories. Brent crude gained 58 cents to $71.82 a barrel by 1:06 p.m. EDT (1706 GMT). U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures climbed 25 cents to $62.03 a barrel. U.S. crude stocks rose unexpectedly last week to their highest since September 2017, while gasoline stockpiles decreased more than forecast, the Energy Information Administration (EIA) said. Crude stocks swelled by 5.4 million barrels, surprising analysts who had expected a decrease of 800,000 barrels. Oil prices have drawn support since Saudi Arabia said on Tuesday that armed drones struck two oil pumping stations, two days after the sabotage of oil tankers near the United Arab Emirates. The attacks took place against a backdrop of U.S.-Iranian tension. Washington has been trying to cut Iran's oil exports to zero with sanctions while beefing up the U.S. military presence in the Gulf. Washington ordered the departure of non-emergency American employees from its diplomatic missions in Iraq on Wednesday in show of concern about threats from Iran-backed forces. Weak economic data from the United States and China capped prices by fuelling worries that global crude demand could slow. The International Energy Agency revised its forecast for 2019 growth in global oil demand 90,000 barrels per day lower to 1.3 million bpd. The energy watchdog also said the world would require very little extra oil from the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries this year as booming U.S. output will offset falling exports from Iran and Venezuela.
