GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Foreign investors remained enthusiastic about China, the foreign ministry said on Tuesday, following U.S. President Donald Trump's claim that his tariffs are causing companies to move production away from the world's second largest economy.</li> <li>• The United States has temporarily eased trade restrictions on China's Huawei to minimize disruption for its customers, a move the founder of the world's largest telecoms equipment maker said meant little because it was already prepared for U.S. action.</li> <li>• Bank of Japan Governor Haruhiko Kuroda on Tuesday warned that escalating U.S.-China trade tensions could hurt business sentiment and inflict widespread damage on the economy.</li> <li>• Australia's central bank will consider cutting interest rates next month, Governor Philip Lowe said on Tuesday as the resource-rich economy looked set to join some of its global counterparts in easing financial conditions to boost growth.</li> <li>• Euro zone consumer confidence rose by 0.8 point in May from the April number, figures released on Tuesday showed.</li> <li>• British factories suffered the biggest fall in orders this month since late 2016, gearing down from their rush to stockpile before the original Brexit deadline in March and boding badly for the economy in the second quarter, a survey showed.</li> <li>• Prime Minister Theresa May set out on Tuesday a "new deal" for Britain's departure from the European Union, offering sweeteners to opposition parties in her fourth attempt to break an impasse in parliament over Brexit.</li> <li>• U.S. home sales fell for a second straight month in April, weighed down by a chronic shortage of more affordable houses, the latest sign the economy was slowing after a temporary boost from exports and an inventory overhang in the first quarter.</li> <li>• Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell on Monday dismissed comparisons between the rise of business debt to record levels in recent years and the conditions in U.S. mortgage markets that preceded the 2007-to-2009 economic crisis, but even so said caution was warranted.</li> <li>• The Federal Reserve is discussing whether a better way to get the U.S. economy to hit the central bank's inflation target is to tolerate much higher price increases in some years to counter the weaker ones.</li> </ul>
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The dollar rose and global equity markets advanced on Tuesday, led by chipmakers and companies exposed to Asia, after the United States temporarily eased trade restrictions on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd.</li> <li>• Major European and Chinese stock indices rose after the Commerce Department late on Monday allowed Huawei to buy U.S. goods until Aug. 19 to maintain existing telecoms networks and provide software updates to its smartphones.</li> </ul>
FOREX	The U.S. dollar was higher against the euro and the yen on Tuesday in a day of risk-on trades after U.S. President Donald Trump temporarily eased curbs on China's Huawei Technologies Co Ltd. Wall Street and Chinese equities and emerging market currencies were all boosted by Trump's decision, which alleviated investor concerns about pressure on corporate results in the sector. Trump added Huawei to a trade blacklist last week, leading several companies to suspend business with the world's largest telecoms equipment maker, which could weigh on their sales. Chipmakers, many of which sell to Huawei, bore the brunt of Monday's sell-off. But late on Monday, the United States granted Huawei a license to buy U.S. goods until Aug. 19. Against the Japanese yen, the U.S. dollar was half a percent stronger, last at 110.59 yen. The dollar index which measures the greenback against a basket of six rivals, was 0.12% higher, last at 98.051. Against the euro, the dollar was up 0.1%, last at $1.116. The single currency is being hurt by

	dollar strength and by the upcoming European parliamentary elections in which euroskeptical parties may fare well. The dollar was also stronger against the pound, which boomeranged on developments in Britain's plan to leave the European Union. Prime Minister Theresa May set out a "new deal" on Tuesday for Britain's departure from the EU, offering sweeteners to Parliament including the chance to vote on whether to hold a second referendum to try to break the impasse over Brexit. The pound initially jumped on the news, then gave up the gains after it became clear that Parliament - which thus far has opposed a second public vote - would have to back any new referendum.
GOLD	Gold prices dropped on Tuesday to the lowest in more than two weeks, as the dollar strengthened along with equities and other riskier assets ahead of the U.S. Federal Reserve's release of minutes from its latest meeting. Spot gold fell 0.3% to $1,273.70 per ounce as of 2:24 p.m. EDT (1824 GMT). The session low of $1,268.97 was its lowest since May 3. U.S. gold futures settled down 0.3% at $1,273.20. International equities markets strengthened after the United States temporarily relaxed curbs on China's Huawei Technologies, easing worries about further escalation of the U.S.-China trade war. The dollar index climbed to its highest in nearly a month, supported by the U.S.-China trade war and higher U.S. Treasury yields. The Fed minutes are expected to provide insights into the May 1 central bank meeting in which policymakers decided to keep interest rates steady and signaled little appetite to adjust them any time soon. On Monday, Fed Chair Jerome Powell said it was premature to ascertain the impact of trade and tariffs on monetary policy. Among other precious metals, silver fell 0.2% to $14.43 per ounce. Platinum fell 0.1% to $811 per ounce after touching a three-month low of $801.50 earlier, while palladium fell 0.7% to $1,320.01 per ounce.
OIL	Oil futures were steady on Tuesday as the prospect of mounting U.S.-Iran tensions disrupting supply was offset by concerns that a lengthy trade war between Washington and Beijing would limit crude demand. Brent crude futures settled at $72.18 a barrel, gaining 21 cents. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures settled at $62.99 a barrel, down 11 cents ahead of the front month contract for June delivery expiring on Tuesday. The July contract settled at $63.13 a barrel. U.S. President Donald Trump on Monday threatened Iran with "great force" if it attacked U.S. interests in the Middle East. On Tuesday, acting U.S. Defense Secretary Patrick Shanahan said that while threats from Iran remained high, deterrence measures taken by the Pentagon had "put on hold" the potential for attacks on Americans. He did not provide details. Washington suspects that militia with ties to Iran organized a rocket attack in Iraq's capital Baghdad. Iran said it would resist U.S. pressure, declining further talks under current circumstances. Tensions have mounted in an already tight market as the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries, Russia and other producers have withheld supply to support prices since the start of the year in a six-month agreement. Saudi Arabia on Sunday indicated there was consensus among OPEC and allied oil producers to continue limiting supplies. Also adding to market tightness was the closure of a major pipeline in Nigeria and Russia supply disruptions. The prolonged tariff fight between the United States and China raised concerns about a global economic slowdown, however. Signs that Asian economies were already being hit by the trade conflict helped to boost the U.S. dollar to a four-week high, making crude more expensive for much of the world. Disappointing U.S. economic data that showed existing home sales fell for a second straight month also hampered crude demand sentiment. The market will also watch U.S. oil stockpiles reports on Tuesday afternoon from the American Petroleum Institute (API) and on Wednesday morning from the U.S. Energy Information Administration (EIA). Analysts in a Reuters poll forecast crude inventories fell 600,000 barrels last week.
