GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Japanese manufacturing activity swung back into contraction in May as export orders fell at the fastest pace in four months, highlighting why policy makers and investors remain anxious about the growing economic impact of a bruising Sino-U.S. trade war.• Canadian wholesale trade increased by 1.4% in March from February on stronger sales in the building material and supplies subsector, Statistics Canada said on Thursday.• Prime Minister Theresa May was clinging to power on Thursday after her final Brexit gambit backfired, overshadowing a European election that has shown a United Kingdom still riven over its divorce from the EU.• A recovery in euro zone business activity was weaker than expected this month as a deepening contraction in the bloc's manufacturing industry is increasingly holding back services firms, a survey showed.• Sales of new U.S. single-family homes fell from near an 11-1/2-year high in April as prices rebounded and manufacturing activity slowed to its lowest level in nearly a decade in May, pointing to a slowdown in economic activity.• But other data on Thursday showed the number of Americans filing claims for unemployment benefits unexpectedly fell last week.• The United States and China had a heated exchange on Thursday, with U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo accusing the chief executive of Huawei Technologies of lying about his company's ties to the communist government and Beijing saying Washington must end its "wrong actions" if it wants trade talks to continue.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• World shares skidded further on Thursday and oil prices plunged more than 5% as investors worried the China-U.S. trade spat was turning into a technology cold war between the world's two largest economies, boosting the dollar and knocking benchmark government debt yields down.• Worries over German manufacturing, trade-sensitive Asian economies, Brexit and European parliamentary elections led investors to flee riskier assets and buy perceived safe-havens.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar retreated after hitting its highest level in two years as weaker domestic data and the threat of economic fallout from the trade war with China increased expectations for an interest-rate cut this year. Against a basket of six rivals, the dollar erased gains made earlier in the day, last trading down 0.16% at 97.885. The dollar move pulled the euro with it, which was up 0.22% to $1.118. Sales of new U.S. single-family homes fell from near an 11-1/2-year high in April as prices rebounded and manufacturing activity hit its lowest level in almost a decade in May, suggesting a sharp slowdown in economic growth was underway. Some of the loss of momentum is the result of the escalating U.S.-China trade war, which economists say is undermining business confidence, as well as sluggish growth overseas. Market expectations that the Federal Reserve would cut interest rates increased on Thursday, according to the CME Group's FedWatch tool. There is only a 36.2% expectation that rates will be at current levels in October of this year, down from 50.8% yesterday. Worries over German manufacturing, the impact of a trade war on Asian economies and deepening concerns over Brexit and European parliamentary elections have broadly curbed risk appetite and sent investors to perceived safe-haven assets. U.S. stocks were lower, and safe-haven currencies such as the Japanese yen and the Swiss franc were up, 0.72% and 0.64% respectively. Activity in Germany's services and manufacturing sectors fell in May, a survey showed on Thursday, reflecting the toll that unresolved trade disputes are having on Europe's largest economy. Compounding these worries, European parliamentary elections began on Thursday with euroskeptic parties expected to do well, raising concerns about the single currency's stability.

	Brexit uncertainty has set sterling up for its 14th straight day of losses against the euro - its longest losing streak in the 20-year history of the single currency.
GOLD	Gold prices jumped 1% on Thursday as the U.S. dollar pulled back from a two-year peak scaled earlier in the session, and global equities and U.S. Treasury yields slid on escalating U.S.-China trade tensions. Spot gold climbed 0.9% to $1,284.78 per ounce by 2:58 pm EDT (1858 GMT), after rising as much as 1.1% to a one-week peak of 1,287.23. U.S. gold futures for June settled up 0.9% at 1,285.40. The dollar index, which earlier touched its highest level since May 2017 at 98.371, turned negative after data showed manufacturing activity hit its lowest level in almost a decade in May. The dollar was last down 0.2% against key rivals, making gold cheaper for holders of other currencies. Sales of new U.S. single-family homes also fell from a near 11-1/2-year high in April. Slowing growth supports the U.S. central bank's recent decision to suspend its three-year campaign to hike interest rates. Lower interest rates tend to lift gold as it reduces the opportunity cost of holding the non-yielding bullion. Fed officials at their last meeting agreed that their patient approach to setting monetary policy could remain in place "for some time," Fed minutes showed on Wednesday. U.S. 10-year Treasury yields dropped to the lowest since December 2017 as equities around the world took a nosedive on concerns about the U.S.-China trade spat. China said the United States needs to correct its "wrong actions" for trade talks to continue after it blacklisted Chinese technology company Huawei Technologies Co Ltd. Among other precious metals, silver gaining 1.1% to $14.60 per ounce, and palladium edged 0.3% lower to $1,310.01. Platinum fell 0.6% to $794.00 an ounce, having touched its lowest since Feb. 15 at $791 earlier in the session.
OIL	Oil prices plunged on Thursday, losing about 5% as trade tensions dampened the demand outlook, putting the crude benchmarks on course for their biggest daily and weekly falls in six months. Oil coursed downward with other global markets as concerns grew that the China-U.S. trade conflict was fast turning into a technology cold war between the world's two largest economies. While the trade war is the main cloud over economic growth and demand predictions, market participants also pointed to weakening U.S. data and overfull U.S. crude stockpiles. Brent crude futures, the international benchmark, settled down $3.23, or 4.6%, at $67.76 a barrel. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures dropped $3.51, or 5.7%, to $57.91 a barrel. Earlier, the contract touched $57.33 a barrel, the lowest since March 13. That was a second consecutive daily decline for the benchmarks. WTI fell 2.5% on Wednesday after government data showed U.S. crude inventories rose last week, hitting their highest levels since July 2017. Economic health indicators for the United States, Europe and Japan showed less robust growth than expected. Data firm IHS Markit said its U.S. manufacturing PMI declined to a reading of 50.6 in early May, marking the lowest level since September 2009, from 52.6 in April. A reading above 50 indicates growth in the manufacturing sector, which accounts for about 12% of the U.S. economy. The survey showed broad weakness, with a measure of new orders received by factories dropping for the first time since August 2009. The firm's survey for Euro zone business growth accelerated less than expected this month. Additionally, U.S.-Iran tensions are decreasing, some analysts said. Countering these bearish factors are ongoing supply cuts led by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). French bank BNP Paribas said high inventories meant that OPEC would likely keep its voluntary supply cuts in place beyond their end-June deadline.
