GLOBAL MARKETS & ECONOMIES | WEEKLY ECONOMIC INDICATORS | CURRENCIES | PRECIOUS METAL | O I L |

GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Australian home prices look to be finally finding a floor as a revival in auction demand put Sydney on track for its first monthly gain in two years. • German economic output will fall slightly in the second quarter, the Bundesbank said on Monday, as one-off effects that underpinned an expansion in the first quarter fade. • British households' pessimism about their finances eased this month, as for the first time this year they took a positive view of the outlook for the next 12 months and enjoyed higher earnings, a monthly survey showed on Monday. • European Central Bank board member Benoit Coeure said in an interview published on Monday that if the ECB decided cutting rates was the best option, it would have to consider the effect of negative rates on banks and whether tiering was needed. • The U.S. Federal Reserve, facing fresh demands by President Donald Trump to cut interest rates, is expected to leave borrowing costs unchanged at a policy meeting this week but possibly lay the groundwork for a rate cut later this year. • A private gauge of U.S. home builder sentiment fell in June, retreating from a six-month high, as rising building costs and trade worries offset falling mortgage rates. • Flexible exchange rates are a key reason for the Bank of Canada's success in hitting inflation targets and will remain an important part of the monetary policy framework, a top official said on Monday.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • A gauge of global stock markets dipped slightly on Monday after a mostly strong month and benchmark U.S. bond yields edged lower as investors awaited developments this week from central banks in the United States and elsewhere. • The U.S. Federal Reserve is set to give its policy statement on Wednesday, with expectations running high the central bank is poised to cut interest rates this year. • The European Central Bank is also holding a forum in Portugal this week, with the Bank of Japan set to hold its policy meeting later in the week.
FOREX	The U.S. dollar was roughly unchanged on Monday, hovering near the two-week high set earlier in the session as investors reconsidered how dovish the Federal Reserve is likely to be at this week's policy meeting. Broader currency markets were quiet, as traders hesitated to put on large positions before the Fed's two-day meeting, a meeting of European Central Bank policymakers in Portugal and the Bank of England's interest rate decision on Thursday. Expectations of a rate cut at the Fed's June 18-19 meeting have fallen to a probability of 20.8%, according to CME Group's FedWatch tool. But bets for monetary easing at its July meeting remain elevated, with markets pricing in a 67.9% chance of a 25 basis point cut. Slow jobs growth in May, dovish comments from Federal Open Market Committee members and a slate of weak inflation data last week pushed rate-hike expectations up. The dollar index hit a two-week high of 97.603 on Monday but was last flat on the day at 97.573. The euro was 0.07% higher at $1.122 as investors awaited policymakers speeches at the European Central Bank meeting in Sintra, Portugal, and Tuesday's euro zone inflation data. Against the yen, the dollar was slightly stronger, last up 0.06% to 108.62. Sterling slid as low as $1.254, its weakest since January, heading for a 2019 low. Investors worry Boris Johnson, the front-runner to replace Prime Minister Theresa May, could put Britain on a path towards a no-deal Brexit. The Bank of England on Thursday will consider tightening monetary policy. Although BoE chief economist Andy Haldane has said the central bank is nearing a time for the UK to raise rates, no major changes should be expected until Brexit negotiations have finished, said Stephen Gallo, European head of foreign exchange strategy at BMO Capital Markets. "We expect the (Monetary Policy Committee) to retain it's tightening bias to some degree, though we wouldn't rule out a few modest tweaks to acknowledge the worsening global backdrop and weak economic conditions in the euro zone."

GOLD	Gold prices slipped further on Monday after sliding from a more-than-14-month high the previous session on upbeat U.S. economic data that dampened expectations the Federal Reserve could ease interest rates. Spot gold edged 0.2% lower to $1,338.90 per ounce at 1:34 p.m. EDT (1734 GMT). Prices had surged to $1,358.04 on Friday, the highest since April 11, 2018. U.S. gold futures settled 0.1% lower at $1,342.90 per ounce. Above-forecast U.S. industrial output data and upbeat retail sales and consumer confidence readings on Friday pushed back futures markets expectations of any quick rate cut by the U.S. Federal Reserve. Expectations of a rate cut at the Fed's June 18-19 meeting fell to 21.7% from 28.3% on Thursday after the retail data, according to CME Group's FedWatch tool. But bets for monetary easing at the July meeting remained at 85%. By Monday, expectations for easing had edged lower. Investors also look towards a G20 summit later this month where U.S. President Donald Trump will likely meet Chinese President Xi Jinping amid their drawn-out trade spat that has ruffled markets since its conception last year. Concerns persist that the bitter trade war could drive world economies into recession. Holdings of SPDR Gold Trust, the world's largest gold-backed exchange-traded fund, rose 0.6% to 764.10 tonnes on Friday from 759.70 tonnes on Thursday. Other precious metals traded lower as well, with spot silver falling 0.3% to $14.82 per ounce, and palladium declining 0.4% to $1,459.01. Platinum dipped to its lowest since May 31, down 0.8% at $793.75 per ounce.
OIL	Oil prices fell more than 1% on Monday after more poor Chinese economic figures fanned fears of lower worldwide oil demand. Brent crude futures lost $1.07 to settle at $60.94 a barrel, a 1.73 percent loss. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures fell 58 cents to settle at $51.93 a barrel, a 1.10 percent loss. Prices have fallen around 20% since a 2019 high reached in April, in part due to concerns about the U.S.-China trade war and disappointing economic data. China's industrial output growth unexpectedly slowed to a more than 17-year low, data from the National Bureau of Statistics showed on Friday. It grew 5.0% in May from a year earlier, missing analysts' expectations of 5.5% and well below April's 5.4%. U.S. President Donald Trump and China's President Xi Jinping could meet at the G20 summit in Japan later this month. Trump has said he would meet with Xi at the summit, although China has not confirmed the meeting. Bank of America Merrill Lynch lowered its Brent price forecast to $63 per barrel from $68 a barrel for the second half of 2019 on faltering demand. Worries remained about increased tensions in the Middle East following last week's attacks on two oil tankers in the Gulf of Oman. The United States blamed the attacks on Iran but Tehran denied involvement. Saudi Arabian Energy Minister Khalid al-Falih said on Monday that countries need to cooperate on keeping shipping lanes open for oil and other energy supplies to ensure stable supplies. Market participants also await a meeting between the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and other producers including Russia, a group known as OPEC+, to decide whether to extend a production cut agreement that ends this month. The group has been considering since last month moving the date of their policy meeting in Vienna to July 3-4 from June 25-26. After a meeting on Monday, Iran's oil minister said he told his Russian counterpart that he still disagreed with the early July dates but could attend if the dates were shifted to July 10-12, the Iranian oil ministry's news agency SHANA reported. OPEC+ agreed to cut output by 1.2 million barrels per day from Jan. 1. In the United States, U.S. oil output from seven major shale formations is expected to rise by about 70,000 barrels per day (bpd) in July to a record 8.52 million bpd, the U.S. Energy Information Administration said in a monthly drilling productivity report on Monday.
