GLOBAL ECONOMIES	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Chinese President Xi Jinping agreed to work together to promote "free and fair trade" in talks on Thursday that included a "complicated" global economic landscape, a Japanese official said. • The Bank of Japan stands ready to ease monetary policy pre-emptively to fend off risks that could derail the economy's path toward achieving its 2% inflation target, Deputy Governor Masazumi Wakatabe said on Thursday. • China's central bank said on Thursday it will maintain support for the slowing economy as global risks rise, while vowing not to adopt "flood-like" stimulus that analysts say could exacerbate debt and structural risks. • The United States should immediately remove sanctions on Chinese telecoms equipment maker Huawei, a commerce ministry spokesman said on Thursday, days before the two countries' leaders are due to meet for talks on trade. • New Zealand business sentiment weakened in June, an ANZ Bank survey showed on Thursday, as the economy faces rising pressure both at home and externally. • Euro zone economic sentiment sank to its lowest point in nearly three years in June, with industry in particular hit by global trade tensions, European Commission data showed on Thursday. • German annual inflation remained well below the European Central Bank's target level in June, preliminary data showed on Thursday, lending support to the bank's decision not to raise interest rates in the coming year. • U.S. economic growth accelerated in the first quarter, the government confirmed on Thursday, but the export and inventory boost to activity masked weakness in domestic demand, some of which appears to have prevailed in the current quarter.
GLOBAL MARKETS	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Global equity markets gained and the dollar held steady on Thursday ahead of the G20 summit where a scheduled meeting of U.S. President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping has stirred hopes that trade tensions could ease. • White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow told Fox News there were no preconditions and nothing was agreed before the Trump-Xi meeting on Saturday. • The trade war has crimped manufacturing and begun to slow growth, so hopes for a truce rekindled investor interest in riskier assets and weighed on safe havens.
FOREX	The dollar held steady against most major currencies on Thursday as traders moved to the sidelines in advance of this weekend's G20 summit where China and the United States may reach a truce on their trade conflict. The world's two largest economies have agreed to a tentative truce in their trade dispute, Hong Kong's South China Morning Post cited sources as saying. U.S. President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping are scheduled to meet on Saturday. The report eased fears that Trump would impose additional tariffs on $300 billion on Chinese goods, but financial markets remain on edge about the trade talks, analysts and traders said. Traders shrugged off a U.S. government report that showed the economy expanded at a 3.1% annualized pace in the first quarter, unchanged from the government's estimate last month. In late U.S. trading, the index that tracks the dollar against the euro, yen, sterling and three other currencies was little changed at 96.206, holding above a three-month low of 95.843 reached on Tuesday. The index broke below its 200-day moving average last week, which analysts cite as bearish for the dollar, after the Federal Reserve signaled it was prepared to lower interest rates to combat the risk from global trade tensions and sluggish domestic inflation. The dollar index was on track for its first quarterly loss since the first quarter of 2018. China's offshore yuan rose 0.20% to 6.8742 per dollar, helping the renminbi back toward the six-week high of 6.8370 yuan per dollar touched last week. The offshore yuan, however, has weakened 2.26% in the second quarter.

	Traders have priced in the probability the Fed would lower rates in July and might cut rates at least three times by year-end, according to interest rates futures calculated by CME Group's FedWatch program. The yen edged up 0.03% to 107.755 per dollar. The Japanese currency has risen a solid 2.7% against the greenback in the second quarter, boosted by expectations of Fed rate cuts and the trade war. Rising tensions between Iran and the United States has also stoked safe-haven demand for the Japanese currency.
GOLD	Gold steadied on Thursday as investors looked for further cues from trade talks between the United States and China, which bolstered risk appetite and lifted the dollar, but the metal held on to support around the key $1,400 per ounce pivot. Spot gold edged 0.1% lower to $1,407.71 per ounce as of 1:37 p.m. EDT(1737 GMT), having briefly dipped below $1,400 earlier in the session. Prices have fallen more than $37 since gold's six-year high of $1,438.63 on Tuesday. U.S. gold futures settled 0.2% lower at $1,412 per ounce. The South China Morning Post (SCMP), citing sources, said Washington and Beijing were laying out an agreement that would help avert the next round of tariffs on an additional $300 billion of Chinese imports. Investors hopes of a trade deal, however, were slightly dented by White House economic adviser Larry Kudlow's comment that Washington may move ahead with more tariffs on Chinese goods after all. Global equities rose for the first time in five sessions, while U.S. stocks pared gains slightly on the back of Kudlow's comments. Meanwhile, the dollar eked out gains following days of weakness as comments from Fed officials on Wednesday signalled aggressive interest rate cuts were unlikely in its July meeting. Futures are 100% priced for a cut of 25 basis points next month, and imply a 22% chance of 50 basis points. Higher interest rates boost the dollar, making dollar-denominated gold more expensive for buyers using other currencies, and they reduce investor interest in non-yielding bullion. Amongst other metals, silver declined 0.1% to $15.22 per ounce, while platinum was down 0.1% at $812.89. Palladium prices rose 1.7% to $1,547.91.
OIL	Oil prices edged higher on Thursday on expectations that OPEC will extend an output cut agreement, while investors awaited a meeting between the United States and China that could produce a breakthrough on trade talks. Brent crude futures rose 6 cents to settle at $66.55 a barrel. U.S. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude futures rose 5 cents to settle at $59.43 a barrel. The Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries is expected to roll over a deal on cutting supplies at a meeting next week and discuss deepening the curbs, Iraq's oil minister said. Sources told Reuters this month that Algeria had floated an idea of deepening the cut by some 600,000 barrels per day. A deal between OPEC and its allies, including Russia to curb output by 1.2 million bpd, runs out at the end of June. Meetings on July 1-2 in Vienna will discuss the next steps. The OPEC meeting will follow the G20 summit this weekend. U.S. President Donald Trump said on Wednesday a trade deal with Chinese President Xi Jinping was possible this weekend but he is prepared to impose U.S. tariffs on most remaining Chinese imports if the two countries don't agree. Tensions between the United States and Iran have also kept the market on edge. Iran is on course to breach a threshold in its nuclear agreement within days by accumulating more enriched uranium than permitted, although it had not done so yet by a deadline it set for Thursday, diplomats said, citing U.N. inspectors' data. When asked about Iran possibly breaching those restrictions, U.S. Special Representative on Iran Brian Hook said it was clear there would be consequences. Elsewhere, the government of Canada's main crude-producing province, Alberta, eased crude oil production curtailments for August on Thursday, setting the limit at 3.74 million bpd, compared with 3.71 million bpd in July.
