GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

|----------------------|---|
| DJIA | U.S. stocks closed higher on Tuesday after an announced delay of planned tariffs on some Chinese imports brought buyers back to the equities market in a broad-based rally. Tech stocks, headed up by Apple Inc, led all three major U.S. indexes into the black following the announcement, which calmed fears over the U.S.-China trade war and growing signs of imminent recession. U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer said the United States would hold off on imposing additional 10% tariffs on key Chinese goods, including laptops and cellphones, tariffs that were originally set to go into effect next month. Apple, a likely beneficiary of the tariff delay, rose 4.2% on Nasdaq, while the Philadelphia SE Semiconductor Index .SOX gained 3.0%. In economic news, U.S. consumer prices accelerated in July, with core CPI, which strips out volatile food and energy prices, growing at 2.2% year-on-year, its largest gain in six months and well above the U.S. Federal Reserve's 2% target. The healthy inflation reading is unlikely to change market expectations for another interest rate cut from the Fed next month as it grapples with the U.S.-China trade war and its economic fallout. Traders work on the floor at the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) in New York, U.S., August 13, 2019. The spread between 2-year and 10-year U.S. Treasuries hit its flattest level in 12 years, reflecting anxieties over trade and geopolitical turmoil. But yields rose across the board on news of the tariff delay. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 372.54 points, or 1.44%, to 26,279.91, the S&P 500 gained 42.48 points, or 1.47%, to 2,926.23 and the Nasdaq Composite added 152.95 points, or 1.95%, to 8,016.36. All of the 11 major sectors in the S&P 500 closed in the black, with technology .SPLRCT and consumer discretionary .SPLRCD seeing the biggest percentage gains. Toys and footwear were among the Chinese goods temporarily spared from additional tariffs. |
| Nikkei | Japanese shares shed more than 1% on Tuesday, the first trading day after a long weekend, hurt by fresh jitters about the U.S.-China trade war, turmoil in Hong Kong and a firmer yen that hit cyclical sectors and exporters. The Nikkei share average fell 1.1% to 20,455.44, its lowest level in a week, while the broader Topix lost 1.2% to 1,486.57. As the market reopened, investors weighed news over the weekend, which had already dented overseas share markets. U.S. President Donald Trump on Friday said he was not ready to make a deal with China and even called a September round of trade talks into question, reviving concerns the dispute is unlikely to end any time soon. Goldman Sachs Group Inc said on Sunday it no longer expects a trade deal before the 2020 U.S. presidential election. Escalating protests in Hong Kong, which caused the shutdown of its busy airport on Monday, also dampened sentiment. Of Tokyo's 33 subindexes, 32 were in the red, with cyclicals such as oil and coal products, iron and steel and mining sub-indexes the top three worst performing sectors, down 4.5%, 2.9% and 2.8%, respectively. The much stronger yen also soured sentiment and dragged down exporters, with Subaru Corp dropping 3.6% and TDK Corp slipping 3.1%. In the currency market, the yen rose as high as 105.05 yen to the dollar over the long weekend. All else being equal, a stronger yen hurts on the profits of Japanese exporters. With the busiest part of Japan's April-June quarter earnings season wrapping up, reaction to earnings continued to dominate trading on Tuesday. |
| Kospi | South Korean shares ended lower on Tuesday as a drop in U.S. yield curve fuelled demand for safe-haven bets, adding pressure on the market, already hit by Sino-U.S. trade war and Japan's export curbs. The Korean won and the benchmark bond yield fell. U.S. 30-year bond yields slid to their lowest since July 2016. U.S. long-term yields have fallen in six of the past nine sessions, reflecting investors' diminished risk appetite. The yield spread between U.S. 2-year and 10-year notes, a closely watched metric, narrowed to 5.3 basis points, the smallest difference since at least 2010, according to Refinitiv data. Japan had said in July it would tighten restrictions on exports of high-tech materials to South Korea, a move seen as related to disputes over compensation for forced labour during World War Two. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI ended down 16.46 points or 0.85% at 1,925.83 points. |

Foreigners were net sellers of 174.6 billion won ($142.88 million) worth of shares on the main board. They were net sellers for a tenth consecutive session, marking the longest selling spree since January 2016.

As the dollar strengthened amid a risk-off mood, foreigners have been hard to buy emerging-market stocks, said Kim Ji-hyung, an analyst at Hanyang Securities. Further, South Korean firms' profit estimation has been sharply revised down, he added.

South Korea's construction stocks slumped after the government introduced a regulation to cool the housing market. The construction sub-index was the biggest percentage loser among KOSPI sub-indexes, with a 2.9% drop.

Shares of E-Mart closed 6.6% firmer after the retailer announced its plan to sell assets and buy back shares.

The won was quoted at 1,222.2 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.49% lower than its previous close at 1,216.2.

In offshore trading, the won was quoted at 1,222.0 per U.S. dollar, down 0.3% from the previous session, while in non-deliverable forward trading its one-month contract was quoted at 1,222.6 per dollar.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ The Hong Kong stock market on Tuesday fell to its lowest level in over seven months, as escalating anti-government protests left the city's airport in a gridlock on Monday. At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was down 2.1% at 25,281.30 points, its lowest level since Jan. 4. The Hang Seng China Enterprises index fell 1.5%. The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares and the IT sector both dipped 1.9%, the financial sector ended 2.1% lower and the property sector lost 2.3%. Hong Kong outpaced losses in Asia. Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was weaker by 1.3%, while Japan's Nikkei index closed down 1.1%. China's main Shanghai Composite index closed down 0.6%, while the blue-chip CSI300 index ended down 0.9%. Protesters sat in at the Hong Kong airport on Monday, forcing mass flight cancellations in the afternoon. Also on Monday, Beijing condemned violence in the protests which it said had begun to show "sprouts of terrorism". Hong Kong's Airport Authority said on Tuesday it was working with its partners to restore normal operations as soon as possible but noted that more protests are planned. Shares of Hong Kong flag carrier Cathay Pacific Airways fell further on Tuesday, having reached a 10-year low this week. China's aviation regulator demanded on Friday that the airline suspend personnel who engaged in or supported illegal protests from staffing flights into its airspace. Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam said on Tuesday the city's recovery from protests that have swept the Asian financial hub could take a long time and that she would be responsible for rebuilding its economy "after the violence eases". Shares in Shenzhen Airport Co Ltd surged over 10% to their highest since April 4.

➤ Chinese shares fell on Tuesday after data showed banks extended fewer-than-expected new loans in July. The Shanghai Composite index closed down 0.6% at 2,797.26, while the blue-chip CSI300 index ended 0.9% lower. CSI300's with financial sector sub-index was lower by 1.4%, the consumer staples sector was down 0.5%, the real estate index fell 1.1% and the healthcare sub-index declined 0.2%. The smaller Shenzhen index ended down 0.7% and the start-up board ChiNext Composite index was weaker by 1%. Chinese banks extended 1.06 trillion yuan ($150.06 billion) in new yuan loans in July, down from June and falling short of analysts' expectations, according to data released by the People's Bank of China on Monday.  Analysts expect Beijing to allow more easing to energise growth. "Investors we spoke to are not yet convinced that announced easing measures will raise consumption and investments," UBS China strategist Wendy Liu said in a note on Tuesday. The Swiss bank toned down its China 2019 GDP growth forecast to 6.1% from 6.2% previously. The PBOC lowered its official yuan midpoint for the ninth straight day to a fresh 11-year low on Tuesday to reflect broad weakness in the local unit. China's yuan is at an appropriate level currently and its fluctuations will not necessarily cause disorderly capital flows, a senior official at the People's Bank of China told Reuters on Tuesday. China's foreign exchange regulator said on Monday it does not expect disorderly depreciation of the yuan despite the impact from external factors such as trade frictions. At 07:34 GMT, onshore yuan was quoted at 7.066 per U.S. dollar, 0.11% weaker than the previous close of 7.0585. Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was weaker by 1.3%, while Japan's Nikkei index closed down 1.1%. The largest percentage losers on the Shanghai index were Xiangpiaopiao Food Co Ltd down 7.8%, followed by Shanghai Shine-Link International Logistics Co Ltd losing 5.9% and Ningbo United Group Co Ltd down by 5.8%. So far this year, the Shanghai stock index is up 12.2% and the CSI300 has risen 21.8%. But, Shanghai stocks have declined 4.6% this month.
