

Daily Outlook

GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	U.S. stocks surged on Thursday on expectations of a de-escalation in trade tensions after Washington and Beijing agreed to hold high-level talks next month, while strong U.S. economic data eased fears of a domestic slowdown. After anxiety about a deepening trade war triggered a sell-off in late July and early August, leading to speculation that a decade-long bull market was ending, the S&amp;P 500 has largely recovered and is now less than 2% short of its July 26 record high close. The benchmark index has climbed 2.4% in the past two sessions. China and the United States agreed to hold talks in early October in Washington, boosting markets as investors bet on a thaw in the trade war between the world's two largest economies, which has taken a toll on global growth. Alternating signs of improvement and deterioration in the U.S.-China trade war, often based on tweets and comments from Trump, have repeatedly sparked volatility on Wall Street in recent months. The S&amp;P information technology index .SPLRCT rose 2.1%, while financials .SPSY jumped 1.9%, the two rising the most among the 11 major S&amp;P 500 sectors. The interest rate-sensitive S&amp;P 500 Banks Index .SPXBK surged 2.5%, following a rise in U.S. Treasury yields. The ADP National Employment Report, considered a precursor to the Labor Department's more comprehensive jobs report, showed U.S. private employers' payrolls grew at the fastest pace in four months in August, led by big gains in service-sector jobs. Another private survey showed growth in U.S. services sectors accelerated in August, rebounding from its weakest level in nearly three years, as new orders rose to their highest level since February amid trade worries. The upbeat reports eased concerns of an economic downturn, which was exacerbated by data on Tuesday that showed a contraction in U.S. factory activity in August. Investors will keep a close watch on the crucial nonfarm payrolls data due on Friday. The Dow Jones Industrial Average jumped 1.41% to end at 26,728.15 points, while the S&amp;P 500 gained 1.30% to 2,975.97. The Nasdaq Composite surged 1.75% to 8,116.83.
Nikkei	Japanese shares closed at their highest in more than a month on Thursday as investors cheered the announcement that U.S.-China trade talks will resume and news from Britain and Hong Kong that also improved risk appetites. The benchmark Nikkei average ended the day up 2.12% at 21,085.94, the highest close since Aug. 2. During the day, it touched 21,164.61, also a peak since Aug. 2. On the Nikkei index, there were 207 advancers and 18 decliners. Japanese shares were boosted after Beijing said China and the United States agreed to hold trade talks in Washington in early October. The market was already on a solid footing after Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam on Wednesday withdrew an extradition bill that triggered months of sometimes violent protests and as British lawmakers voted to prevent a no-deal Brexit on Oct. 31. All of the Tokyo Stock Exchange's 33 subsectors were in positive territory as the market attracted hefty purchases across the board. Cyclical sectors were particularly in demand, with precision machinery and sea transport the top two performing subindexes on the broader Topix, up 3.73% and 3.72%, respectively. The broader Topix added 1.84% to 1,534.46. Other notable movers included the TSE REIT index, edging up 0.44% to a fresh 12-year high.
Kospi	South Korean shares closed at a one-month high on Thursday as the United States and China agreed to hold trade talks next month, amid positive political developments in Hong Kong and Britain. The Korean won and the benchmark bond yield rose. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI ended up 16.22 points, or 0.82%, to 2,004.75, after rising as much as 1.4%. China and the United States agreed to hold high-level trade talks in early October in Washington, China's commerce ministry said, amid fears that an escalating trade war could trigger a global economic recession. Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam withdrew an extradition bill on Wednesday that had triggered months of often violent protests in the Asian financial hub, adding to the risk-on sentiment. External uncertainties have eased, prompting strong net buying in IT shares by foreign investors, said Lee Young-gon, an analyst with Hana Financial Investment.

	Foreigners were net buyers of 187.1 billion won ($154.29 million) worth of shares on the main board. Samsung Electronics and its mobile phone parts suppliers in South Korea jumped as the company is set to launch its first foldable smartphone in the country. The won was quoted at 1,200.2 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.67% higher than its previous close at 1,208.2.
Hang Seng &amp; Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks ended flat in subdued trade on Thursday on some profit booking, after withdrawal of a controversial extradition bill led to sharp gains in the previous session. The Hang Seng index ended down 0.03%, or 7.70 points, at 26,515.53, while the China Enterprises Index gained 0.9% to end at 10,384.14. Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam said that China “understands, respects and supports” her government’s move to formally withdraw an extradition bill, part of measures she hoped would help the city “move forward” after months of unrest. “Throughout the whole process, the Central People’s Government took the position that they understood why we have to do it. They respect my view, and they support me all the way,” said Lam, dressed in a cream suit and looking less tense than a televised appearance the day before. Reports of the withdrawal sent the Hang Seng index surging nearly 4% on Wednesday, its best day since late 2018. For the day, industrial and materials led the gains as Beijing vowed to boost its economy, while properties dragged on profit-taking. China will implement both broad and targeted cuts in the reserve requirement ratio (RRR) for banks “in a timely manner,” China’s cabinet said in a meeting, an indication that a cut in the key ratio aimed at boosting lending could be imminent. ➤ China stocks ended higher on Thursday, boosted by hopes Beijing will free up the amount of cash banks must keep as reserves to shore up the economy, while another round of talks between China and the United States in October aided sentiment. The blue-chip CSI300 index rose 1.0%, to 3,925.32, while the Shanghai Composite Index also closed up 1% at 2,985.86. China will implement both broad and targeted cuts in the reserve requirement ratio (RRR) for banks “in a timely manner,” China’s cabinet said in a meeting on Wednesday, an indication that a cut in the key ratio aimed at boosting lending could be imminent. Meanwhile, China and the United States agreed to hold high-level trade talks in early October in Washington, China’s commerce ministry said on Thursday, amid fears that an escalating trade war could trigger a global economic recession. Many of China’s analysts believe the negative impact on the A-share market from the Sino-U.S. trade war would marginally decrease with time, as Beijing rolls out more measures to boost the economy at a time when A-shares’ valuations are reasonable and more international money flows in as the country further opens up its capital markets. JPMorgan will add Chinese government bonds to its widely-tracked emerging market local currency bond index from February 2020 — a decision expected to suck billions into the world’s third-largest bond market. Major index providers MSCI and FTSE Russell will announce further increased inclusion factors for the A-share market later this year. For the day, investors via the Stock Connect linking Hong Kong and the mainland purchased a net 9.7 billion yuan ($1.37 billion) worth of A-shares, extending their recent buying interest.
