

Daily Outlook GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	Wall Street climbed to record highs on Friday, with major indexes turning in their strongest weekly gains since August, after strong U.S. housing data and signs of resilience in the Chinese economy raised hopes of a rebound in global growth. Market sentiment brightened further this week after the United States and China sealed a Phase 1 trade deal, pausing an 18-month tariff dispute that has weighed on financial markets globally. Earlier in the day, data showed China ended 2019 on a somewhat firmer note, even as economic growth cooled to its weakest in nearly 30 years. Meanwhile, U.S. homebuilding surged to a 13-year high in December, suggesting the housing market recovery was back on track amid low mortgage rates. Analysts expect earnings at S&P 500 companies to drop 0.8% in the fourth quarter, but forecast a 5.8% rise in the first quarter of 2020, according to Refinitiv IBES data. Many investors expect companies to be more upbeat about the future following the truce in the China-U.S. trade war. Billionaire David Tepper, who founded hedge fund Appaloosa Management, told CNBC that he remains bullish on U.S. equities. All three main indexes closed at record highs. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 0.17% to end at 29,348.1 points, while the S&P 500 gained 0.39% to 3,329.62. The Nasdaq Composite added 0.34% to 9,388.94. For the week, the S&P 500 added 1.96%, the Dow rose 1.82% and the Nasdaq increased 2.29%.
	In a thin day for earnings, oilfield service provider Schlumberger NV reported a slightly better-than-
Nikkei	expected quarterly profit, but its stock dipped 1.1%. Japan's benchmark share index on Friday marked its highest close in a month, after touching a 15-month peak earlier in the session, as hopes for a rebound in global demand and a softer yen drove broad-based gains. The Nikkei 225 Index closed 0.45% firmer at 24,041.26. In early trading, it scaled its highest level since October 2018, taking gains so far this year to more than 1%. The broader Topix was 0.4% stronger. The formal signing of the Sino-U.S. trade agreement on Wednesday and the recent easing of tensions in the Middle East have removed uncertainty and fired hopes for a revival in global growth and demand. Chinese economic data released on Friday, while subdued for the year, included an unexpected jump in factory output and solid retail sales in December, suggesting the world's second-biggest economy ended the year on a firmer note. Optimism has also pushed the safe-haven Japanese yen to an almost eight-month low - a boon for exporters. The dollar last traded at 110.23 yen, up 0.08% during the session. Gains were spread across all sectors of the market, with 167 advancers in the Nikkei index against 46 decliners, led by Japan's industrial engine room: carmakers, steelmakers and industrials. South Korean shares ended almost flat on Friday after hitting a 15-month high in morning trade, as
Kospi	investors awaited fresh cues following a recent rally driven by trade optimism. The Seoul stock market's KOSPI ended up 2.52 points, or 0.11 per cent, at 2,250.57. The benchmark index rose as much as 0.92 per cent in early trade, notching its highest level since Oct 8, 2018. The index jumped 2 per cent from a week ago, marking its second straight weekly gain. Foreigners were net buyers of US$81.87 million worth of shares on the main board. The KOSPI has risen 2.41 per cent so far this year, and gained 7.5 per cent in the previous 30 trading sessions.
Hang Seng & Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks rose on Friday and posted their seventh straight weekly gain, as investors cheered signs of economic recovery on the mainland as well as the signing of a Sino-U.S. trade deal earlier this week. The Hang Seng index climbed 0.6%, to 29,056.42, while the China Enterprises Index gained 0.8%, to 11,419.91. For the week, HSI was up 1.5%, while HSCE climbed 1.4%, both up for the seventh week in a row. China's economic growth slowed to its weakest in nearly 30 years in 2019 amid the bruising trade war and sputtering investment, and more stimulus steps are expected this year to help avert a sharper slowdown. But data also showed the world's second-largest economy ended the year on a firmer note as trade tensions eased, suggesting a raft of growth-boosting measures over the past two years may finally be starting to take hold. Analysts and investors believe more signs of modest recovery in China's economy would help bolster confidence in capital markets.

Strong gains on Wall Street following the signing of the trade deal also helped boost risk appetite in the Asian financial hub, which is closely linked with U.S. markets.

China will boost purchases of U.S. goods and services by $200 billion over two years in exchange for the rolling back of some tariffs under the initial trade deal.

The principle that ensures Hong Kong enjoys freedoms unavailable in mainland China can continue beyond its 2047 expiry date as long as the city's youngsters do not destroy it with "temporary misunderstandings," Chief Executive Carrie Lam said on Thursday.

> China stocks inched higher on Friday amid more signs of resilience in the world's second-largest economy, though they posted modest weekly losses as trader pocketed gains following a rally underpinned by optimism around a Sino-U.S. trade deal.

The blue-chip CSI300 index rose 0.1%, to 4,154.85, while the Shanghai Composite Index added 0.1% to 3,075.50.

For the week, CSI300 slipped 0.2% and SSEC lost 0.5%, both snapping six straight weekly gains.

China will boost purchases of U.S. goods and services by $200 billion over two years in exchange for the rolling back of some tariffs under the initial trade deal signed by the world's two largest economies.

With at least a deal in place, investors and consumers would feel things have stabilised, thus helping shore up confidence, said Fan Lei, an economist with Sealand Securities.

Though some argue the deal had been mostly priced into a recent strong run in the A-share market and it's natural for some profit-taking after the signing of the deal whose content is quite unsurprising. Besides, caution also grows as the week-long Lunar New Year holiday approaches when trading is usually thin.
