GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	The benchmark S&P 500 posted a record closing high on Wednesday as U.S. stocks rallied for a third straight day on encouraging U.S. economic data and waning fears of the financial fallout from the corona virus in China. The Nasdaq also notched a record close but steep losses in Tesla shares limited the index's advance. The ADP National Employment Report showed private payrolls jumped by 291,000 jobs in January, the most since May 2015, while a separate report showed U.S. services sector activity picked up last month, suggesting the economy could continue to grow moderately this year even as consumer spending slows. The S&P 500 has more than recovered from last week's steep losses after China boosted liquidity to limit the economic impact of the coronavirus outbreak. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose 483.22 points, or 1.68%, to 29,290.85, the S&P 500 gained 37.1 points, or 1.13%, to 3,334.69 and the Nasdaq Composite added 40.71 points, or 0.43%, to 9,508.68. Energy was the best-performing S&P 500 sector, jumping 3.8% along with a rise in crude prices. The healthcare sector climbed 2.0%, led by health insurers as well as by a 17.5% jump in shares of Biogen after the biotech company won a patent ruling on a multiple sclerosis drug.
Nikkei	Japanese shares rose on Wednesday as a Wall Street rally and weaker yen boosted investor sentiment, although worries over the fast-spreading coronavirus outbreak capped gains. The benchmark Nikkei average rose 1% to 23,319.56, while the broader Topix also added 1% to 1,701.83. All but one of the 33 sector subindexes on the Tokyo Stock Exchange were in positive territory, led by fish and forest, insurance and mining. On Wall Street, the Nasdaq jumped 2.1% to a record on Tuesday, while the S&P 500 and the Dow advanced 1.7% each as investors took heart from China's efforts to minimise the economic impact from the coronavirus epidemic. The safe-haven yen nursed losses versus the dollar and was last at 109.45 yen, close to a 1-1/2-week low hit overnight, providing a tailwind for Japanese exporters. A weaker yen boosts corporate profits when they are repatriated. Sharp Corp climbed 1.2% after the electronics company reported a 38.5% increase in third-quarter operating profit due to gains at its smart appliance division and cost-reduction efforts. Panasonic Corp continued its advance, with the shares ending the morning session up 4.4%, two days after the electronics conglomerate said its automotive battery venture with Tesla Inc was in the black for the first time. Sony Corp shed 0.5% in choppy trade after the company warned of an impact from the Wuhan coronavirus on its global supply chain, although the electronics company raised its annual profit outlook due to strong sales of smartphone image sensors. Subaru Corp declined 0.4% after the automaker maintained its profit forecast for the year through March and said the firm is checking with China-based suppliers for potential disruptions to parts deliveries from the coronavirus outbreak. Many traders doubted the recent rally is sustainable, noting the lingering concerns about the virus outbreak and its broader economic and market impact. The death toll from the flu-like virus that originated in China's central city of Wuhan has passed 490, as two U.S. airlines suspended flights to Hong Kong following the first fatality there and 10 cases were confirmed on a quarantined Japanese cruise ship.
Kospi	South Korean shares rose for a second straight session on Wednesday as investors bet on additional stimulus measures from Beijing to blunt the economic blow from a coronavirus outbreak. The Korean won and the benchmark bond yield weakened. The Seoul stock market's main KOSPI ended up 7.73 points, or 0.36%, at 2,165.63. Markets took comfort on reports that Chinese policymakers are readying measures to support an economy jolted by a coronavirus outbreak that is expected to have a devastating impact on first-quarter growth, policy sources said. The death toll from a coronavirus outbreak in China passed 490 on Wednesday, as two U.S. airlines suspended flights to Hong Kong following the first fatality there and 10 cases were confirmed on a cruise ship quarantined in Japan. Expectations of China's policy support and an overnight gains in U.S. stocks lifted domestic stocks, said Kim Dae-jun, an analyst at Korea Investment & Securities. Tracking a surge in Tesla shares, its suppliers listed in Seoul extended their gains, with Samsung SDI and LG Chem ending up 2% and 0.7%, respectively.

	Foreigners were net buyers of 458.5 billion won ($384.91 million) worth of shares on the main board. The won was quoted at 1,191.5 per dollar on the onshore settlement platform, 0.34% lower than its previous close at 1,187.4.
Hang Seng & Shanghai	➤ Hong Kong stocks gained for the third straight session on Wednesday as investors bet on further policy support from Beijing to offset the economic impact of a rapidly spreading coronavirus. At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was up 0.4% at 26,786.74. The Hang Seng China Enterprises index rose 0.6%. The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares rose 0.9%, the IT sector gained 0.2%, the financial sector ended 0.5% higher and the property sector edged up 0.1%. The top gainer on the Hang Seng was CSPC Pharmaceutical Group Ltd, which gained 4.5%, while the biggest loser was Sunny Optical Technology Group Co Ltd, which fell 2.7%. Reuters reported on Tuesday Chinese policymakers are readying measures to support the economy jolted by the coronavirus outbreak that is expected to have a devastating impact on first-quarter growth. The death toll in mainland China passed 490, as two U.S. airlines suspended flights to Hong Kong following the first fatality there and 10 cases were confirmed on a quarantined Japanese cruise ship. Hong Kong's Cathay Pacific Airways Ltd has asked all its 27,000 employees to take three weeks of unpaid leave in coming months as it battles a fall in demand caused by the virus outbreak, the company said. The city has confirmed 18 cases so far. The outbreak invoked memories of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS), another coronavirus that emerged from China in 2002, which killed almost 800 people worldwide and cost the global economy an estimated $33 billion. China's main Shanghai Composite index and CSI300 index also rose on hopes of further policy support from Beijing. ➤ China stocks climbed on Wednesday as investors bet on further policy support from Beijing to offset the impact of a fast-spreading new coronavirus, with start-ups leading the gains. At the close, the Shanghai Composite index was up 1.3% at 2,818.09, moving further away from a one-year bottom hit during Monday's selloff. The blue-chip CSI300 index gained 1.1%. CSI300's financial sector sub-index was higher by 0.3%, the consumer staples sector rose 1.4%, the real estate index was up 0.4% and healthcare shares rallied 3.3%. The smaller Shenzhen index rose 2.5%, while the tech-heavy start-up board index ChiNextP rallied as much as 4.4% before closing 3% higher - trading at levels last seen before the Lunar New Year holiday. Among best performers in the index were Shenzhen Mindray Bio-Medical Electronics and battery maker CATL . Both surged by their 10% daily limits. Strong gains in China's start-up board companies boosted broader market sentiment, said Zhang Gang, an analyst with China Central Securities. Reuters reported on Tuesday Chinese policymakers are readying measures to support an economy jolted by a coronavirus outbreak that is expected to have a devastating impact on first-quarter growth. The death toll in China passed 490, as two U.S. airlines suspended flights to Hong Kong following the first fatality there and 10 cases were confirmed on a quarantined Japanese cruise ship. China's central bank said on Tuesday that its huge liquidity injections through open market operations this week showed its determination to restore market confidence. Some listed companies announced share buybacks, while fund managers and their employees also planned to purchase their own funds to buy equities. Growth in China's services sector slowed for a second straight month in January, a traditionally busy sales season, a private sector survey showed.
