GLOBAL STOCK INDEX

DJIA	U.S. stocks tumbled on Thursday, with shares of banks and travel companies taking a beating, as a new wave of fear about the spread of the coronavirus and its economic impact gripped investors just one day after election results powered a rally. The major indexes fell over 3%. On Wednesday the market tallied huge gains following moderate Joe Biden's success in the Super Tuesday primaries for the Democratic presidential nomination. The coronavirus has led to more than 3,300 deaths worldwide. In the United States, new cases of the vast-spreading virus were reported on Thursday around New York and in San Francisco. In the latest developments, Alphabet Inc's Google joined other big tech firms in recommending employees in the Seattle area work from home. The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 969.58 points, or 3.58%, to 26,121.28, the S&P 500 lost 106.18 points, or 3.39%, to 3,023.94 and the Nasdaq Composite dropped 279.49 points, or 3.1%, to 8,738.60. The benchmark S&P 500 ended down more than 10% from its Feb. 19 closing high, after last week logging its biggest weekly percentage decline since October 2008. The financial sector dropped 4.9% as the continued fall in Treasury yields weighed on rate-sensitive bank shares. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note fell to 0.91%. Shares of JPMorgan Chase dropped 4.9% and Bank of America Corp slid 5.1%. All 11 major S&P 500 sectors ended negative, but defensive sectors, such as utilities and consumer staples, fell less than the overall market. The CBOE Volatility index, Wall Street's fear gauge, jumped 7.62 points to 39.61. Shares of companies in the travel and leisure industry were punished. The S&P 500 airline index skidded 8.2%, including a 13.4% fall for American Airlines Group Inc. The coronavirus epidemic could rob passenger airlines of up to $113 billion in revenue this year, an industry body warned. Shares of cruise operators tumbled after the Grand Princess ocean liner, owned by Carnival Corp, was barred from returning to its home port of San Francisco on coronavirus fears after at least 20 people aboard fell ill. Carnival shares dropped 14.1%, while Royal Caribbean Cruises fell 16.3%. Data showed that the number of Americans filing for unemployment benefits fell last week, suggesting the labor market was on solid footing despite the coronavirus outbreak, with investors casting an eye toward Friday's U.S. employment report for February.
Nikkei	Japanese shares posted their biggest one-day percentage gain in a month on Thursday, tracking a surge on Wall Street following strong showing by Joe Biden in Democratic primaries and robust data that lifted sentiment amid a rise in coronavirus cases. The Nikkei index ended 1.09% higher at 21,329.12, boosted by the healthcare and industrial sectors. Former Vice President Biden is now leading the race for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination, and his economic policies are considered more benign than main rival Bernie Sanders. U.S. data that showed strong private sector hiring and robust growth in the services sector added to the upbeat mood. However, many investors warned that the recent sell-off due to the global spread of the coronavirus could quickly return because the flu-like illness has not yet been contained. The virus emerged in China late last year but has since spread to some 80 countries, with infections in Japan topping 200 and deaths totalling six. That excludes more than 700 cases and five more deaths from a quarantined cruise liner. There were 137 advancers on the Nikkei index against 79 decliners on Thursday.
Kospi	South Korean shares closed higher for a fourth straight session on Thursday, helped by global stimulus efforts to cushion the economic impact from the coronavirus. The KOSPI ended 25.93 points higher, or 1.26 per cent, at 2,085.26. The gains in KOSPI were driven by (news of) emergency funding from IMF, World Bank and the US House of Representatives, as well as global monetary easing, Kiwoom Securities analyst Seo Sang-young said. But rising infections in the United States remain a risk and markets would continue to be volatile through March, Mr Seo added. South Korea reported 438 new cases, raising the national tally to 5,766. The death toll rose to 35. However, new infections were seen slowing, raising hopes that the peak of the epidemic may be over. Foreign investors sold net US$108.49 million worth of shares on the main board. The trading volume was 659.95 million shares. Of the total traded issues of 904, the number of advancing shares was 710. The KOSPI has fallen 5.11 per cent so far this year.

Hang Seng & Shanghai

➤ The Hong Kong stock market rose the most in a month on Thursday on hopes that global central banks, including China's, will ramp up policy easing to offset economic pressure from the coronavirus outbreak.

At the close of trade, the Hang Seng index was up 2.1% at 26,767.87, near its highest level since last Thursday touched during the session. The index also made the largest daily percentage uptick since Feb. 6. The Hang Seng China Enterprises index rose 2%. The index touched its highest level since Feb. 21 on Thursday and also made its largest percentage daily gain in a month. The sub-index of the Hang Seng tracking energy shares rose 1.2%, the IT sector rallied 2.8%, the financial sector ended 1.9% higher and the property sector gained 1.5%.

Markets widely believe Chinese authorities will continue to move to lower financing costs for businesses and roll out measures to prop up the economy despite the central bank holding a short-term interest rate this week.

The widening economic fallout of the virus has prompted policymakers around the world to step up monetary support, including an emergency 50 basis point interest rate cut by the U.S. Federal Reserve. Hong Kong's monetary policy moves lock-step with the United States because of its currency peg with the greenback. Some of the city's interbank rates hit 2018 lows this week. Blue-chips in China hit seven-week high and shares in Shanghai touched six-week high on brewing expectation of policy easing. Around the region, MSCI's Asia ex-Japan stock index was firmer by 1.3%, while Japan's Nikkei index closed up 1.1%.

➤ Blue-chip stocks in China climbed more than 2% to seven-week highs on Thursday, as investors expected more policy support from Beijing after major central banks cut rates to soothe the economic pain of the coronavirus epidemic.

The blue-chip CSI300 index jumped 2.2%, hitting its highest level since Jan. 14. The Shanghai Composite index reached its six-week high during the afternoon session and settled 2% higher at 3,071.68.

CSI300's financial sector sub-index was higher by 2.4%, the consumer staples sector rallied 4.3%, the real estate index edged up 0.5% and the healthcare sub-index was up 2.8%.

The smaller Shenzhen index ended up 1.8% and the start-up board ChiNext Composite index rose 1.9%. Markets widely believe authorities will continue to move to lower financing costs for businesses and roll out measures to prop up the economy despite the central bank holding a short-term interest rate this week.

The widening economic fallout of the virus has prompted policymakers around the world to step up monetary support, including an emergency 50 basis point interest rate cut by the U.S. Federal Reserve. Brokerage Chuancai Securities said on Thursday that gives Beijing more room to ease its policy.

China's exports and imports likely tumbled in the first two months of the year amid disruption to economic activity caused by the epidemic, a Reuters poll showed.

Mainland China has seen a broad trend of new cases declining from mid-February. The number of cases rose to 139 on Wednesday, with most of the new infections from Wuhan. In the rest of mainland China, there were only five new cases.
